A PLOT FOR TAKING PARIS.

[illegible] of the Government Spies in the City—The Royal National Guards to Seize the Strongholds of the Insurgents—A Simultaneous Attack from Versailles.

VERSAILLES, Tuesday Night.—To-night the plot is to be struck which the authorities hope will restore Paris to the lawful Government. The chiefs of that Government in Paris have arranged the following programme: Eighteen thousand loyal Royal Guards in Paris are organized. At a fixed hour 6,000 will attack the Hotel de Ville, 4,000 Belleville, and 6,000 Montmartre. At the same moment a grand attack on Porte Maillot will be made from Versailles, and an effort made to get possession. At St. Lazare Station large reserves will be ready. Gen. TROCHU will take the supreme command of the city to-night. The authorities are sanguine of success. Soldiers and sailors are to form the leading attacking column. Twelve thousand men of the old Imperial Guard are ready to march at a moment's notice, and if unsuccessful, 12,000 more of the same guard will be ready in ten days. There are 80,000 men now at Versailles.

The Church of Notre Dame de Lorette has been sacked, placards of conciliation torn down.

This morning the insurgents unsuccessfully attempted to draw the Versailles troops into a trap at Asnieres.

AFFAIRS IN FRANCE.

Fighting Still Kept up Around Paris—The Versailles Troops Generally Successful—The Insurgents Receiving Money From the Church—The Assignats Threatened with Death—Official Statements.

LONDON, April 11.—The forces of Versailles are completely masters of the situation at Neuilly, but spare the inhabitants as far as possible from bombardment. The fire of Fort Mont Valerien is consequently very slow. There was sharp musketry firing yesterday, in the Bois de Boulogne.

A manifesto of the "League for the Defence of the Rights of Paris" demands Communal liberties, and that Paris shall be guarded by the National Guards only.

The Soir announces the death of the Abbe DUPUYSEY, from congestion of the brain.

The village of Chatillon is occupied by 10,000 insurgents, who have made a sortie against the plateau, in which they were repulsed. The reported arrest of M. BOURGCLUZE is contradicted. The insurgents are said to have made a demand upon the Church for 1,000,000 francs, and avow that they will kill the Archbishop of Paris if it is not paid.

M. FAVRE in a speech to the National Assembly, said that all the Powers had expressed their sympathies with the Government of Versailles as the only legitimate Government of France. He also stated that the German Administrator in France, Gen. FABRICE, had declined the overtures made to him by the Commune, which he believed must shortly succumb to the power of the Government. The insurgents have taken away the plate from the Foreign Office in Paris.

An announcement was made in the Assembly by one of the members of the Government confirmatory of previous statements as to the general re-establishment of order in the country; and it was added, in regard to Paris, that the Government had the most implicit reliance upon the courage and constancy of the army.

M. THIERS has issued a circular to Prefects for the information of the people of France, in which he says: "The status of Paris is unsettered, the insurgents have returned to Asnieres. Our troops have fortified the bridge at Neuilly; their conduct has been admirable; there has been an attempt at insurrection in Toulouse, but it has been suppressed. The disarrangement of the Nationals at Marseilles proceeds. Outside of the Capital all is tranquillity. The Government is satisfied that the citizens have given it their confidence."

A dispatch from Versailles 10th, says: "Yesterday Porte Vanves and Issy were shelled. The insurgents at Chatillon twice attacked our troops and were repulsed. The funeral of the Generals killed in the battle of Neuilly took place today, and was attended by immense crowds of the people. The official journal guardedly denies that the National Assembly is in favor of a King, but says the Government of France, but says pointedly that Napoleonism and Communism must perish."

Opening of Communication with Paris—Position of Forces—Measures of Conciliation to be Proposed.

PARIS, April 11.—The Communal authorities have redoubled their precautions against the departure of persons from the city without passports. DOMBROWSKI reports the complete occupation of Asnieres by the Nationals, and the effective operation of the iron-clad cars on the Versailles and St. Germain Railway.

Affairs at the Porte Maillot have improved for the Nationals, who repaired during the night the damages caused by the cannonade in the day. They have also erected additional batteries, and otherwise strengthened the defenses around the gate.

It is said that Herr VON FABRICE has informed the Government at Versailles that the Paris Commune has notified him of its determination to stop traffic on the Northern Railway. Gen. D'ARGENAULT commands the forces around Mont Valerien, and Gen. CISSEY those on the plain of Chatillon.

PARIS, April 11, via LONDON—Midnight.—The cannonade and musketry firing was renewed this morning at Porte Maillot, Neuilly, the Porte des Ternes, and in the Bois de Boulogne.

A deputation have gone to Versailles for the purpose of proposing measures of conciliation. They are instructed to insist on the maintenance of the Republic and the continuance of municipal franchises, and to demand that the Nationals shall also guard Paris; and, if Thiers rejects these terms, to inquire what conditions the Versailles Government has to propose.

GENERAL EUROPEAN NEWS.

England Urges Germany to Restore Order at Paris—French Prisoners in Switzerland—Social Changes in Russia—Cable Communication with the East.

BERLIN, April 11.—The Prussian Cross-Gazette says the British Government is endeavoring to persuade Germany to intervene for the restoration of order in Paris.

BERNE, April 11.—The total number of French soldiers sent home from Switzerland is 86,694.

DARMSTADT, April 11.—Baron DALWIGK VON LICHTENFELS, President of the Ministry and Minister of Foreign Affairs, has resigned, and is succeeded by Baron VON LIEBELOW, late Minister of Justice.

LONDON, April 11.—The repair of the Singapore and Batavia cable has been effected. Messages for Java and Sumatra can now be forwarded by wire direct.

Good Effect of the Election of the Country—The Situation and Prospects—Correspondence of The Times, Copenhagen, March 29, Correspondence from Berlin.

The result of the deliberations of the Conference has been received with a general feeling of relief; for although the main point at issue was known to have been virtually settled some weeks (Feb. 24), still apprehensions existed that a sudden constitutional question might crop up, that some difficulty as to the details of the treaty might arise, which, if it did not actually lead to war, would maintain for longer the state of disquiet in which wars and rumors of wars have held this country for eight months past, to the great detriment of its commerce and finances. Turkey, those who, in Turkey, may, with substantial reason from the treaty, fear the future dangers to which it exposes her are remote and less vital than the peril of present war would have been, with an empty exchequer and allies only half-hearted in her cause. But the incidents which the treaty eliminates did not work without serious damage to this country and Government; it has thoroughly justified the outlay of an iron-clad fleet, for which the Porte has often been severely criticised in financial circles at home; and it has also shown that the Turks know how to make the best of their position; that they possess political wisdom and foresight, and can play the only card in their hands, which in this case was their naval strength, to the best possible advantage. This ability on their part has stayed off war which, in Western Europe, seemed, and should not be backward in recognizing, by increased consideration and confidence, the statesmanlike qualities which have preserved peace without any sacrifice of national dignity.

DEATH RECORD.

Dr. Schultzenstein, Botanist—Baron Dudevant—Mme. Bonaparte Wyse.

Dr. KARL HEINRICH SCHULTZE-SCHULTZENSTEIN, of Berlin, one of the most eminent botanists in Germany, was found dead in his bed on the morning of the 23d. He had been engaged at his desk until past midnight. The deceased, though in his seventy-third year, was remarkably active, and was a lecturer on physiology as well as on botany in the University of Berlin with which he had been connected since 1828.

Baron DUDEVANT, the husband of Mme. GEORGE SAND, died at Nohant, in the department of Indre, on the 24th, on the 24th of last month. He was seventy-six years old. The decease of Mme. LETITIA BONAPARTE-WYSE is announced as having recently happened at Florence. She had passed her seventieth year, but though she appeared lately much broken in health, her death at the last was in a great measure unexpected. She was the widow of Sir THOMAS WYSE, of St. Jonats, Waterford, many years member of Parliament for that city, and afterward Her Majesty's Envoy at the Court of Athens. She has left issue two sons, and also two daughters, both married. M. PETIS, the well-known writer on music, and director of the Brussels Conservatory, died in Brussels on March 24.

The Worst Thunder-Storm of the Season.

Another very sudden change in the weather was precipitated upon us yesterday morning. The temperature rapidly altered from sultry heat to a large degree of coolness. At about 4 o'clock the thermometer stood at 65. At 1 A. M. it was at 50°. The sunshine seemed to have but little influence on the cold, which continued, with disagreeable gusts of strong, raw-tempered wind, until sundown. At about 8 o'clock, the clouds lowered with dark portents of rain and almost incessant flashes of lightning. At 8½ a heavy shower of rain fell, accompanied by the roar and rumble of thunder, for the first time this season. This continued, with three intermissions, until 10 o'clock, when it ceased as suddenly as it commenced, leaving dark and gloomy clouds, with uncertain winds, to indicate what shall yet follow. From noon until 11 P. M. the thermometer ranged from 57° to 60°.

Sentence of Pickpockets at the Tombs.

In addition to the usual assortments of culprits that were arraigned before Justices DOWLING and SHANDLEY, in the Court of Special Sessions, yesterday, was a procession of fifteen pickpockets, who were detected in the very act of pilfering the valuables of spectators along the route of the great German ovation of Monday. The following were sentenced to six months each in the Penitentiary: Henry Burns, Conrad Sahn, John Curtis, George Gallagher, John Smith, John Mezson, Henry Johnson and Charles Hope. Seven others were remanded. The majority were instantly recognized by the Court as old offenders. A much greater number of professionals escaped arrest. A thriving business was done on that day by the thieves, and complaints of losses are numerous.

The New-York Presbytery—Election of Officers and Delegates.

The second day's session of the New-York Presbytery was held yesterday in the University-place Presbyterian Church. The following officers were elected: Rev. Mr. Aikman, of the Spring-street Church, Moderator; Geo. S. Chambers, Clerk; Rev. Dr. S. Alexander, Stated Clerk; Rev. Dr. Spaulding, Permanent Clerk; Elder Belknap, Treasurer; Rev. Drs. Hastings, Booth, Stephen, Smith and others, occupied the pulpit. A very large number of clergymen answered to the roll call. The report of the Church Extension Committee was presented and adopted. A lengthy, animated, and rather tedious discussion ensued between Rev. Drs. HALL, BOWELL, HOFFER, WILSON and HASTINGS.

The following delegates to the General Assembly, to be held at Chicago in May, were elected: Primary Delegates—Revs. H. B. Smith, Wm. Aikman, Dr. John Hall, Rev. M. C. Butcher and O. L. Prentiss. Alternates—Revs. W. W. Spear, J. R. Wilson, D. W. Hitchcock, Dr. Alexander and Dr. Chas. H. Dayson.

Several reports were then presented, showing that the churches embraced by the Presbytery were in a prosperous condition; that the membership had increased, and that Sabbath-schools were largely attended.

Brief addresses on the work to be accomplished by the Presbytery were then made by Dr. BOOTH, Dr. HASTINGS, and other gentlemen.

The session then adjourned until this morning at 9 o'clock.

THE EAST.

The New-York State-Canal Railroad Accident—Probable Murder and Suicide.

BOSTON, April 11.—A communication from Col. JAMES FISK to Mayor GASTON, requesting the hospitalities of the city to the Ninth New-York Regiment on its proposed visit to Boston, in June next, was presented to the Board of Aldermen last evening, and laid on the table.

The body of the woman found on the Ferry Beach at Saco, is identified as that of MARY McCARTHY, of Boston. HENRY F. JOY, of Saco, was with her when last seen, and it is thought that he committed suicide, or else murdered her. JOY left a package containing $715 at his wife's door, with directions to get his trunk at the Biddeford depot, which contained a letter confessing adultery and intent of self-murder.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 11.—WILLIAM HARRISON, aged thirty-five, a resident of Central Falls, R. I., was fatally injured by a freight train on the Hartford Road, near Sterling, Conn., on Saturday night.

Boston Criminal News—The French Fair.

BOSTON, April 11.—The Grand Jury of the United States District Court has indicted ELBRY C. DARBEE, late Cashier of the Webster National Bank, for embezzling $48,000 from that institution. Also, HENRY W. FITMAN, for embezzling $8,000 from the North National Bank, of which he was Cashier. The Police have arrested JOHN HAZEE, WM. O'BRIEN, and MICHAEL SWAN, charged with recent extensive robberies in Boston and vicinity, and recovered a large amount of stolen property from them.

The Fair in aid of the destitute in France was opened to-night in the Boston Theatre—the parquet having been floored over and other alterations made which admirably fit it for the purpose. The ladies of Boston and vicinity have devoted much labor and expense in the preparation, and the opening attendance promises a good success. GILLMORE's full band added to the attractions this evening. Commander SHANNON has reported himself at the Portsmouth Navy-yard today to take command of the Vandalia.

THE SOUTH.

A Slaver Taken and Slaughter Threshed in Virginia.

STAUNTON, Va., April 11.—THOMAS HOUGH, the noted desperado, horse-thief and murderer, who shot and fatally wounded WHITLOCK on Friday night last, was taken from the jail in this place about 1 o'clock this morning, by a mob, and hanged at a place about one and a half miles from town. The jailor and Ex-Sheriff McCORMICK were both in the jail, and refused to surrender the keys to the mob, whereupon they broke open the doors and took Hough out. None of the men who entered the jail were disguised, but they were strangers to the officers and not recognized. HOUGH had shot and killed four men in this locality before he shot WHITLOCK. This is the first act of lynching that has ever occurred in this community, and it is universally condemned.

Legislative Masters in Mississippi.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 11.—A special dispatch to the Avalanche, from Jackson, Miss., states: "A warm discussion took place in the House today, on an amendment to the new Code declaring that any person on any public conveyance, railroad, steamboat or stage, who shall or attempt to assign any passengers to any particular car or particular steamboat or stage, shall be fined $2,000 and imprisoned not less than one month or more than six. The amendment was formally adopted. The Governor recommends to the Legislature to memorialize Congress to refund the cotton tax of 1865 and 1866. Lieut.-Gov. POWERS assumed the duties of Governor today. Alcorn will be absent for some time at New-York for the organization of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company.

Grant Club of the Twelfth Assembly District.

A meeting of the Twelfth Assembly District Grant Club was held last evening at their rooms in Avenue D, JAMES DUNCAN in the chair. After the meeting had been called to order, the Chairman said that the present was the proper time to make some definite plans for the future. The key-note had been struck in Washington last Saturday by Senator MORTON, and he thought that the sound should re-echo throughout the country. Indeed, he did not know but that to this fact might be traced the sudden change that had taken place in counting the Connecticut vote. Mr. J. MCCHERAID then offered the following resolutions:

Whereas, The position of the Republican Party of the City and County of New-York for some months past has been such that in the judgment of a large number of Republicans, it has become necessary to reorganize in the City; and

Whereas, Pending the action of the State Central Committee ordering such organization, it was deemed expedient to form a Grant Campaign Club in each Assembly District in the City of New-York; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the Republicans of the Twelfth Assembly District, do recognize the Grant Campaign Club, of which JAMES DUNCAN is President, as the duly recognized organization of the Twelfth District, and cordially invite all Republicans and good citizens favorable to the re-election of Gen. GRANT to come and act with us.

The resolution was agreed to by an almost unanimous vote.

Col. DUGANNE was then introduced, who made a brief speech, reviewing the policy and actions of the Administration, which he pronounced to be guided by right motives, and to have attained the greatest possible success. He, with others, was ready to follow the lead of the same man that had led them through the war, and who now, while trying to extend the commerce of the United States by cutting a passage through the Isthmus of Darien, and by enlarging the boundary of our country, was at the same time holding the Kuklux of the South under rule, and saying: "Thus far shalt thou go, and no further." Mr. H. D. LAPADGH made the closing address, in which he dwelt with much force on the fact that that the "carpet-baggers" were entirely constitutional in what they did, and holding to his own and as the opinion of all true Republicans at the North, that the Kuklux disorders should be wholly suppressed. Among the gentlemen present were Messrs. JAMES E. TAYLOR, A. B. SAGE and R. W. STEELE.

Election Riot in Paterson, N. J., Yesterday.

The election in Paterson, which occurred on Monday, an account of which was published in these columns yesterday, was quietly conducted, except in one ward—the Eighth—where a slight disturbance was created during the afternoon. Early yesterday morning, however, the excitement caused by the close rivalry of the parties broke out in a fierce riot. While the votes were being counted, at about 8 A. M., a party of roughs attacked the inspectors, smashed the ballot-boxes and scattered the votes in all directions. The raid was made evidently for the sole purpose of destroying the count, for no person was injured in the disturbance. The rioters escaped, but their names have, in part, been obtained, and they will be arrested.

With this ward thrown out, the Republicans elect their Mayor and control the Boards of Aldermen, Freeholders and Education.

The Democrats charge that the disturbers were set on by the Republicans, the Eighth Ward having been hitherto Democratic. It is asserted by the Democrats that the result in this ward would have made a tie in the Board of Aldermen, and would have elected a Democratic Mayor. They demand a special election. Great excitement prevails in the City.

Tammany Agents Sent to the South.

Large sums of money have been offered to colored men in this City to go South, for the purpose of influencing the colored vote at the South in the approaching Presidential election. It is a well established fact that thousands of dollars have been offered by the Tammany men to colored Republicans who would select for this purpose, and that JAMES FRISBIE, of this City, has gone on this mission to Huntsville, Ala., there to work among the colored people in the Democratic interest. He received $50 in hand in part payment for his services, which it may be said have been estimated far beyond their value, as it is safe to say that few colored men can be induced to swerve from their allegiance to the party of freedom.

THE STATE CAPITAL.

Final Conclusion of the Weed-Irving Difficulty.

The Investigating Committee's Report Unanimously Adopted—Probable Abandonment of the Two Per Cent. Tax Levy—A Decided Blow at the Ring—Miscellaneous Matters.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

ALBANY, April 11.—The report of the Investigating Committee on the Weed-Irving row, was presented to-night, and unanimously accepted without debate. It would have been accompanied by a resolution of expulsion had not IRVING put himself out of the jurisdiction of the House by resigning. The interruption of business caused by this affair will probably delay the final adjournment of the Legislature till the middle of next week. The talk now is that the Ring will abandon their two per cent. Tax Levy bill and bring forward one of their old-fashioned budgets, filled to the brim with jobs and stealings. It is believed by many, and was so intimated in these dispatches a month ago, that this was their intention from the start, and that SAINT' two per cent. fraud was only used to delay action till the closing hours of the Legislature. The Supply bill was reported this evening, and will be considered in special session to-morrow afternoon. The total amount of the appropriations is $1,000,000 less than last year's bill. The reduction being in the items for the payment of back interest in coin on State bonds and the diminished appropriation for the State Capitol. Albany County elected a Republican Board of Supervisors today for the first time in several years. Another three months' sessions of the Ring Legislature here would drive every decent Democrat into the Republican ranks.

The Weed-Irving Investigation—Feeling of the Country Democracy—Determination to no Longer Submit to the Bullying of the "Ring"—A New Democratic Leader—The Capital Commission—A Change in the Programme—The Canal Claims—A Door Opened for Fraud.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ALBANY, Tuesday, April 11, 1871.

The Weed-Irving row still absorbs the attention of the Lower House of the Legislature, and stops the transaction of any further business until the Investigating Committee makes its report. An attempt was made at the opening of the Assembly this morning to proceed with the regular business of the House, and leave the Investigating Committee to report at their leisure, but it was voted down by a large majority, and the House adjourned to this evening, when the Committee hope to be able to make their report. There are a large number of members who will not be satisfied with anything short of a formal expulsion of IRVING, notwithstanding his resignation, but the probability is that the Committee will simply give a statement of the facts regarding the disturbance as found by the evidence taken before them, and accompany it by a censure of the guilty party and a full vindication of the innocent. The effort made by TOM FIELDS last evening, to get the House to drop all further investigation of the affair after the resignation of IRVING, signally failed. The occurrence has aroused the slumbering wrath of what the World contemptuously dubbed the "hay-loft and cheese-press Democracy," and they are now nearly unanimous and outspoken in their determination to submit no longer to the bullying domination of the City Democracy as misrepresented by the corrupt Tammany Ring. If the "Young Democracy," or any other Democracy not comprehended in the two words TWEED and SWEENY, were to present a charter for the City of New-York here now, they would find no difficulty in getting it through the Assembly, in spite of the Ring's money. TWEED has so often boasted of his ability to buy up the "hay-loft and cheese-press" rabble whenever he wanted them, that he has at last forced them to stand on their dignity and self-respect. Unless the signs of the times are greatly at fault, the power of the Tammany Ring to control the Democratic Party of this State ceases from this time henceforth. SMITH M. WEED has been placed by accident, as it were, in a position where he can become the leader of the regenerated Democracy of the State. He is well fitted for such a position, being an educated man, a good speaker, a man of sufficient wealth to be beyond the ordinary temptations of political thieves, and a man of indomitable perseverance, courage and persistency. The Tammany Ring never made a greater mistake than when they undertook to snuff such a man at the outset of the session, by giving him secondary positions on unimportant committees. He has been a thorn in their side since the beginning of the session, and he will be a worse thorn before another Gubernatorial election comes round.

A CHANGE IN THE CAPITOL COMMISSION.

It has been decided to change the Commission for building the new Capitol, which was created by the Legislature of 1868, and consisted of four Republicans and four Democrats. The Democrats, being in the majority in this Legislature, had made up their minds to change the Commission so as to give them a majority in the Board, and their original plan was to take five of the Commissioners and give the Republicans three. The Tammany Republicans, who have been hanging around the Legislature in full force all Winter, picking up whatever crumbs might chance to drop from TWEED and SWEENY's table, had contracted with the Ring to go for the change in the Commission, provided the three Republicans should be all Fenton men. This, of course, was acceded to by the Ring. The resignation of IRVING, however, has necessitated a change in the programme. The Democracy has no longer the power to change the Commission without the consent of at least one Republican. The way they propose to do it is by a clause in the Supply bill, which would require sixty-five votes for its passage—the same as any other law—and the Democrats are now left with only sixty-four. Under these circumstances it would naturally be supposed that the Republicans would stand together in a body and present any change in the Commission, since the Democrats had made it a party measure and attempted to get control of the Commission. But the Tammany Republicans before mentioned are so anxious to get their own man on the Commission that they are ready to waive what little party feeling they may have, and make a trade, after their usual manner, with the Ring. It would not do to give the Democracy a majority on the Commission, since they could no longer demand it by virtue of having the power to take it, and so the Fenton Republicans have cooked up an agreement by which the Commission is to be reduced to six members, each party taking three. The only members of the old Commission that are to be retained in the new are HAMILTON HARRIS, on the Republican side, and WM. A. RICE, on the Democratic side. The new men are to be CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW and Gen. MERRITT, (late Naval Officer at the Port of New-York,) Republicans, and WM. C. KINGSLEY and DELOS DE WOLFE, Democrats. HAMILTON HARRIS, the old Republican Commissioner, who is retained, was the legal and confidential adviser of REUBEN E. FENTON when he was Governor, and was the go-between in the suspicious transaction between the Erie Ring and Gov. FENTON, whereby the Governor's signature was obtained to a bill that Erie had engineered through the Legislature. Those who are curious to know the particulars of this transaction will find them in the report of the Senate Investigating Committee, of which the incorruptible MATTHEW HALE was Chairman, and which was presented to the Senate at the session of 1867. It is fit and proper that "Ham" HARRIS should head the FENTON or Tammany Republican representation in the new Commission. Mr. DEPEW and Gen. MERRITT are unobjectionable men, but no better than the Republicans who are to be removed to give them places, except that they are adherents of FENTON. If they consulted the interests and harmony of the party to which they profess to belong they would oppose any change in the Commission and refuse to be the batchelaries of a ticket with Tammany Hall. When that infamous political organization is tottering to its fall, it is no time for Republicans who care for their future reputation to be seen striking corrupt bargains with. This year's appropriation for the new Capitol is to be limited to $250,000 in the Supply bill, but an effort will be made to increase it in the House to $500,000.

It is rumored that there have already been selected by the Ways and Means Committee, for positions upon the new Capitol Commission, WM. A. RICE, of Albany, who now holds the position, W. L. KINSLEY, of Brooklyn, and DELOS DE WOLF, Democrats; HAMILTON HARRIS, the present Chairman, CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW and E. M. MERRITT, Republicans. The Committee have measurably reduced the appropriation, making it two hundred and fifty thousand dollars. This will probably be increased on the conference.

THE RAILROAD COMMITTEE.

Speaker HITCHMAN has appointed RICHARD FLANAGAN, of New-York, to take the place of JAMES IRVING on the Railroad Committee. Mr. FLANAGAN is a quiet, gentlemanly man, and perhaps the most popular of this entire New-York delegation. This is his second year in the Assembly.

CANAL APPRAISERS' BILL.

When the Legislature met there was one evil that it was deemed an absolute necessity to abolish, and that was to restrict the power of the Board of Canal Appraisers, appointed to new jurisdiction by the Legislature of 1870. To eliminate the danger of utterly exhausting the Treasury by claims extending over the whole term of the existence of the canal system of the State, it was heralded that a bill would be passed to limit such claims to a period of six years preceding the time of their presentation. The Democracy, as is their custom, heralded this intention over the State, and went into joyful anticipations of a virtuous future. The bill was introduced and went through the Assembly, there was opposition, but the first blush of their new-born honesty had not given away, and they were true to their promise. The bill reached the Senate. What was now to be done? The Canal Appraisers had recovered from their first surprise, their friends labored to prevent the reform which was pouring streams of money out of the public Treasury and gilding the pockets of the happy officials who held the offices of Appraiser, and who beheld the whole line of the canals tributary attendants upon their wants. The Senate Committee considered the bill, and hesitated what to do, but public pressure was strong, and it was reported. Last night it came up before the Committee of the Whole. What was best to do? Pass it as it came from the Assembly, and try for one year more a system modified and restricted? No; that would give benefit to nobody. What then? Why, so amend it that it would abolish the Board of Appraisers, and then let it die in the Assembly by the efforts of the friends of the Board who would be bound to labor against it, when the very life of the officials was threatened. Amendments were, therefore, in order, and the bill was so amended that it abolishes the Board of Canal Appraisers. This morning it came up for final passage and received four votes. This was reconsidered and the bill may pass the Senate, but it has no chance in the House. This ends this virtuous cry of canal reform, and we may be assured that the system will remain in force, and that the State will be saddled in the next year, or it has in the past one, with claims nearly eight times greater than under the very bad system of claims before the Legislature, it ever was before. A new feature of this system is the introduction of bills to pay fees of attorneys who have been employed to assist the State Attorney in protecting the Treasury. One bill calls for $17,500, and it is understood that this is but one of many similar claims.

Never before has the whole amount of such charge, reached $8,000. Under the new toll system the revenue of the canal have fallen from nearly $4,000,000 per year to less than $600,000. The repairs have advanced in the same time almost $2,000,000. The audited claims have progressed almost an equal amount, and the Attorney's fees of the State are many hundred per cent. in advance of any preceding year. This is a good show for the people, one that they will do wisely to remember.

S.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

SENATE....ALBANY, Tuesday, April 11.

BILLS PASSED.

The following bills pertaining to New-York and Brooklyn were passed:

To extend the time for the organization of the New-York Loan and Indemnity Company; to incorporate the Kings County Water Works Company; to incorporate the Bush Terminal; to improve the southern portions of the Ninth and Twenty-first Wards, Brooklyn; to incorporate the Excelsior Safe Deposit Company of New-York; to amend the charter of the Central Park of New-York; to amend the charter of the American Missionary Association; to amend the act relative to buildings in the City of New-York; to provide for the extension of the Rondout and Oswego Railroad to the east bank of the Hudson River and to establish a ferry at that river; relative to the fire-alarm telegraph in New-York City; incorporating the National Improvement Company of New-York; to incorporate the New-York Free Circulating Library; to incorporate the St. Patrick's Hall Association of New-York; to authorize a ferry across the Hudson River at Cornwall; to prevent frauds on the part of auctioneers in New-York and Brooklyn; to regulate the opening of highways by the Spuyten Duyvil and Port Morris Railroad Company.

THE NEW-HAMBURG DISASTER.

Mr. WOOD moved to instruct the Railroad Committee to report on the New-Hamburg Railroad disaster.

Mr. GERRY said the Committee would report to-morrow if possible. They had hoped to report today, and probably would have done so but for the trouble in the House.

Mr. WOOD withdrew his motion.

GENERAL ORDERS.

The following bills were ordered to a third reading:

Incorporating the North River Bridge Company.

To build a bridge at Troy.

Recess to 7 P. M.

EVENING SESSION.

GENERAL ORDERS.

The following bills were ordered to a third reading:

To improve the tributaries to the Great South Bay; to enable the City of Troy to fund its floating debt; providing for better railroad accommodations in Westchester County; relative to the compensation of jurors in civil and criminal cases; relative to the support of the poor of Rensselaer County; to incorporate the Long Island City and Calvary Cemetery Railroad Company.

Adjourned.

ASSEMBLY.

THE WEED-IRVING DIFFICULTY.

Mr. FIELDS rose to a question of privilege, and stated that the Committee appointed to investigate the Weed-Irving case was not ready to report.

Some debate ensued as to reconsidering the resolution of the House last night to hold no session until the Committee was ready to report.

Mr. ALVORD and Mr. LITTLEJOHN argued that the members could not discharge their duties both in the House and Committee-room.

Mr. FIELDS thought that, as the testimony was all in, the report could be written and the members could remain in the House, thus permitting legislation to proceed.

Mr. D. BURNS expressed the same opinion, and moved a reconsideration of the resolution of last night to adjourn till this evening in the event that the Committee was not ready to report this morning.

The motion was lost by 44 to 37, and the Speaker adjourned the House till this evening.

EVENING SESSION.

THE IRVING DIFFICULTY.

Mr. FIELDS, from the Weed-Irving Investigating Committee, submitted a unanimous report, stating that the Committee had given the case a full investigation, and concluding as follows:

Mr. IRVING having resigned his seat as a member of the Assembly from the Sixteenth Assembly District of the County of New-York, and no one having appeared against Mr. WEED, your Committee feel that they have discharged their duty in reporting the testimony taken before the Committee to the House with the following resolutions:

Resolved, That in the judgment of the House the conduct of Mr. IRVING, as a member from the Sixteenth Assembly District in the County of New-York, during the session of Friday evening, April 7, 1871, was a high breach of privilege and the rights of the members, and if Mr. IRVING had remained a member of this House, he would have deserved the severest punishment at the power to inflict.

Thos. C. Fields, Thos. G. Alvord, G. W. Ryckman, D. C. Littlejohn, Alex. Frear.

The question was taken on agreeing with the report, and it was unanimously agreed to—yeas 104, no nays.

THE INSURANCE LAW.

A communication was presented by the Speaker from the New-York Chamber of Commerce, remonstrating against the passage of the bill before the Legislature relative to insurance.

The bill to provide for the introduction of some mode for a more rapid transit on canals was passed.

BILLS KILLED.

The House went into Committee on the bill to repeal the Railroad Town Bonding law. This bill was killed.

The Senate resolution to amend the Constitution by providing for a Board of State Prison Managers was also killed.

LIGHT-HOUSES.

Mr. FIELDS introduced a bill to amend the act ceding lands to the United States for light-house purposes, and on his motion it was passed.

Adjourned.

THE RECENT ELECTIONS.

Postponement of the Connecticut Official Canvass.

HARTFORD, Conn., April 11.—The Board of Canvassers met today and postponed the canvass for Governor, State officers, and members of Congress till the 25th. Unofficial certificates were issued to Congressmen-elect Strong, STARKWEATHER, and DARNUM, but owing to the close vote in the Second District none was given to Mr. KELLOGG. Mr. KENDRICK appeared by counsel, and claimed that the Board of Canvassers as the final judge of the election, and asked that the votes for him put into the wrong box in New-Haven and elsewhere be counted for him. The hearing of this question was postponed till the 25d inst.

Other Elections.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 11.—At the Charter election here today the Democrats elected their ticket by about the usual majority of from 1,800 to 2,000 votes. The Republicans have elected seven out of sixteen Supervisors in the city, with a prospect of securing a majority of one in the Board.

TROY, N. Y., April 11.—The Watervliet town election, yesterday, resulted in a Republican triumph by an average plurality of nearly 400. The town includes West Albany, West Troy and Green Island.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., April 11.—At the Charter election today ORLEN STEELE, Democrat, was elected Mayor, and the entire Democratic city ticket was elected.

NEW-BRUNSWICK, N. J., April 11.—At the charter election in this city today, G. CONOVER, the Democratic candidate, was elected Mayor.

NEWARK, N. J., April 11.—The town elections took place in New-Jersey yesterday. In Essex County, the Republicans elected twenty-six Freeholders, and the Democrats twelve. Morris County elected eighteen Republican and twelve Democratic Freeholders. Sussex and Warren Counties went Democratic. Morristown and Hackettstown elected the Democratic ticket. Somerset County went Republican for the first time in twenty years. Union County is divided. Trenton went Democratic. The vote in Paterson was very close.

Election in Jersey City—Astonishing Republican Success—Two Out of Twelve Republican Aldermen.

The election for city officers under the new charter was held yesterday, and passed off, with few exceptions, in a quiet and orderly manner. The result was a decided Republican victory, which was almost entirely unexpected by leading politicians of both parties. The Irishmen claim that they have the secret, and that the neglect of the Irish element in the make-up of the Democratic tickets—which bore no Irish names—did the business for the party. Last year the Board of Aldermen stood two-thirds Democratic; by this election it is changed to five-sixths Republican—two out of twelve members being elected by the Republicans. In the Aldermanic Districts are reduced from sixteen to six, and five of these gave Republican majorities.

The following figures show the totals in all the districts that had been fully reported at Police Head-quarters at midnight:

FIRST DISTRICT.

Bunsted, Rep.	555	Nagus, Dem.	469
Farrier, Rep.	505	Van Saun, Dem.	500

The Democrats elect their Aldermen and Freeholders in the Second District.

THIRD DISTRICT.

Otter, Rep.	720	Gardam, Dem.	541
Savage, Rep.	1,023	Geldes, Dem.	555

In the Fourth District EDWARDS and STRANGEN, Republican candidates, are elected.

FIFTH DISTRICT.

Holden, Rep.	422	Young, Dem.	424
Wandle, Rep.	471	Haivor, Dem.	360

SIXTH DISTRICT.

Mandeville, Rep.	423	Clark, Dem.	423
Smith, Rep.	427	Culver, Dem.	423

The Board of Freeholders will stand 23 Republicans to 12 Democrats.

New-Brunswick Charter Election.

At the New-Brunswick charter election, yesterday, GARRETT CONOVER, the Democratic candidate for Mayor, was elected by 54 majority. In four wards Republican Aldermen were elected, only two Democrats being successful. Four Chosen Freeholders out of six were also elected by the Republicans. A tie occurs in the Middlesex County Board of Freeholders, thirteen members having been elected by each party.

Essex Township Elections—Republican Successes.

The Essex County township elections resulted in Republican victories in most of the towns. The Board of Chosen Freeholders will stand 26 Republicans to 10 Democrats. Last year the Board was 22 to 16. There are this year thirty-six members only, the township of Woodbridge having been swallowed up by Newark and Bellerville. Compared with last year the Republicans have gained five members in Newark, one in Orange, one in Montclair, and have lost one in Milburn.

Result of the Charter Election in Trenton.

The result of the Charter election at Trenton gives the Democrats a Mayor, (JOHN BUIRKY,) Receiver of Taxes, (ROBERT S. WOODRUFF,) and School superintendent, (Dr. SHERMAN.) They are sure of four out of the five Democratic Freeholders from the city, which, together with those from the townships of Hamilton, Lawrence and Ewing, will give them a majority in the Board. At present the political complexion of the Common Council is doubtful, as the result of the voting had not been announced last evening.

The Election in Hoboken.

The returns from the various wards up to 1 o'clock this morning were very meagre, and indicated a decidedly close contest for the Mayoralty. KENNELL (Dem.) will probably be elected by a small majority. Judge BONNEFOY (Dem.) is elected Recorder, FREDERICK A. ROWALD (Rep.) City Clerk, and MURPHY (Dem.) Water Register.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 11.—A number of gentlemen of the Washington Press were entertained to-night at Eldon Hall by their brethren of Baltimore. Speeches were made by M. W. BARR, of Washington, Agent of the Southern Associated Press; W. F. PRESTON, C. W. TAYLOR and others.

COAL SUSPENSION.

No Attempt at Resumption at the Scranton Mines.

Affairs in the Coal Region Quiet But Uncertain.

ANOTHER RIOTOUS OUTRAGE.

Prompt Arrest of the Brutal Assailants.

The Conference Barren of Results So Far.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

SCRANTON, Penn., April 11.—HILL & FELLOWS' Church Mine did not attempt to resume work today, and consequently there was no general disturbance. One of the delegation of miners, DANIEL OWENS, while returning home after the meeting, at 4 o'clock this morning, was set upon by two miners who were dissatisfied with his action in the meeting, and he was horribly and dangerously beaten. His nose was broken and pounded to a jelly, and had it not been for the interference of outsiders who heard his shrieks for help, he thinks very naturally that he would have been killed. Warrants were

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

THE WONDERS OF ENGRAVING. By GEORGE DUPLESSIS. New-York: CHARLES SCRIBNER & Co. 1871.

This volume is one of the series known as the "Illustrated Library of Wonders." The collection so named is by no means characterized by the extravagant color or flimsiness that some from the title might anticipate. Most of the books of the series that we have seen are, on the contrary, well stored with authenticated facts, set forth in no mean literary style. The one before us is a useful hand-book, treating of a subject familiar to few, and yet important to many. Engraving is peculiarly an art, the processes of which are almost of necessity only known to experts, but the results of which are constantly becoming interesting to greater numbers. The treatment of an art so closely associated with that of painting necessarily includes frequent reference to pictures and artists; and those at all acquainted with the latter will find not a little in this treatise about the heroes and products of the brush and palette mingled with like details about those of the graver and scribing-needle. Such readers may thus find themselves treading a somewhat unfamiliar road in very well-known company. Mr. DUPLESSIS has packed his facts closely; and, which is even better, with so excellent a method—as regards dates and styles and progress—that the result is a book both pleasant to read and valuable for reference. The engravings are very good in their way, and give proper completeness to the volume.

FRANK FORRESTER'S HORSE AND HORSEMANSHIP OF THE UNITED STATES AND BRITISH PROVINCES OF NORTH AMERICA.

The recently-issued edition of this interesting work comes before us in a most agreeable form; it has been enlarged and continued down to the year 1871, by the Brothers S. D. & H. G. BRUCE, and then published by GEO. E. WOODWARD, of this City. To say that H. W. HERBERT, under his nom de plume of Frank Forrester, has given to the sporting world many useful works is only to repeat a well-known fact. In the opening chapter of the first volume of the present work we find an erudite account of the horse as Holy Writ and other ancient writings describe him, and a brief sketch of some of the highest art representations in sculpture attributed to PHIDIAS. In our opinion the author is somewhat hard on Italian horses, when, in this same chapter, he says they are now nearly worthless. They are an inferior breed, but they are far from being valueless. We might instance those stately black stallions that a few months since thronged a portion of the gorgeous equipages of the Roman Church, and also several distinct breeds of the Maremma horse. This latter, when bred with care, is short and powerful, enduring and docile; he is not beautiful, yet he makes a good, serviceable drag horse.

Mr. BARBARO'S second chapter describes the ancient aspect of the Anglo-Arabian; and every true lover of this most noble specimen of the equine family will read it with pleasure and profit. It is succinct and to the purpose. The various chapters on performances and produce of the most noted sire, both imported and native born, go fairly into the question of blood, and demonstrate clearly to the intelligent breeder the immense value of the desert race, as also the absolute necessity of an authentic stud record. If, as Frank Forrester plainly shows, the British Isles possess the best clean bred horse of the present age, he is but just to American horsemen when he lauds the capabilities of the American roadster. Truly, under adverse circumstances of poor keep and injudicious stable management, American Harness horses perform wonders. Were the present system changed, and a better one adopted America might speedily boast a superb breed of harness horses; as it is they lack courage and beauty of form, and their speed never do them justice. Gladly would we disagree on the subject of American horsemanship; but alas! the fact is too plain, that the running martingale is used in this country to steady the rider on his seat. Away on the open prairie Americans are horsemen, but in Central Park and such like localities, men on horseback are a sight to shudder at and to avoid. The second volume is devoted to remarks on the trotting-horse of America, as also on hints to horsemen, and on the various methods of breaking young horses. This latter portion is of value to all, as it shows how to do that which, in this country, is rarely, if ever, well done. A fine mouthed saddle or harness horse is almost unknown here; one reason of which is that most people are heavy-handed when on the saddle or on the box. This they demonstrate by the manner in which they invariably grasp the reins in both hands and then throw all their weight on the horse's under jaw; this makes the animal heavy in hand and teaches him to lean. Mr. HERBERT'S work is well printed and handsomely illustrated. Some of the engravings are pleasing and truthful likenesses; especially so is the portrait of Glencoe. We regret to say, however, that Leamington's portrait is little short of a caricature of the noblest son of the unrivaled Faugh a Ballagh. This is unaccountable to us, as from the pose of the portrait we recognize the original, a well-executed picture, now in the possession of R. W. CAMERON, the importer of this superb Anglo-Irish horse. Taken in its entirety, this edition of Frank Forrester is valuable, and merits the patronage of the American public.

SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY. An Illustrated Magazine for the people. Vol. I. New-York: SCRIBNER & Co.

The first volume of Scribner's, in neat cloth covers and clean-cut edges, makes a very attractive and well-arranged miscellany. It forms a book that can be taken up in moods when the mind seeks to be amused, as well as when it craves instruction or is disposed to reflection. The list of authors comprises some of the names highest in our native literature, as well as others of European fame. There is matter in it for every age and taste, and the book contains nothing to offend the most fastidious, or to impair the moral and intellectual Ideal of the most impressionable reader. May its successor be like unto it, or only different in attaining still higher excellence.

AMERICAN TROTTING REGISTER. By J. H. WALLACE.

In giving his Trotting Register to the world, Mr. WALLACE has conferred a true and lasting benefit on the admirers of the American trotting horse. In the introductory pages he has demonstrated to a certainty that the American trotter owes his origin to Sampson, an English race horse, yet a natural trotter. This horse was the sire of Engineer, the sire of Mambrino, the sire of Messenger. The latter horse was imported into this country, precise date not accurately established. His sister, Mambrina, was likewise imported to America, and both of these animals had the power of transmitting their trotting qualities to their offspring in a most decided manner. There are 3,000 pedigrees given in this register, and although the author does not assert that they are all entirely to be relied upon, yet they are of immense value, and are mostly drawn from facts. This work is handsomely got up, and ought to form a part of every sportsman's library.

THE WESTERN AND EASTERN QUESTIONS OF EUROPE. By ELIHU BURRITT. Hartford: HAMERSLEY & CO. 1871.

This little pamphlet contains a series of well-digested comments upon current topics of European history, reprinted from the columns of the TIMES and other journals. They are one and all of unquestioned originality and merit, and are distinguished by that fresh and vigorous Saxon style so uniformly characteristic of their author. The papers on Russia and her place in modern civilization are especially deserving of careful perusal.

THE MILLER OF ANGERVILLE, and THE SNOW MAN. By GEORGE SAND. Boston: ROBERTS BROTHERS. 1871.

The first of these volumes has been translated by MARY E. DEWEY, and the second by VIRGINIA VAUGHAN. The pellucid style of the author of Consuelo has been reproduced with sufficient fidelity to make them very charming reading, both on account of the merits of the narratives and the language in which they are told.

MOWBRAY CURWEN and THE THREE GUARDSMEN. By ALEXANDRE DUMAS. HARRY LORREQUER. By CHARLES LEVER. EIGHTS A-FOOT. By WILKIE COLLINS. Philadelphia: T. B. PETERSON & BROTHERS.

These volumes are the latest additions to the popular series of the works of standard novelists in course of publication by the great Philadelphia publishing house. They are clearly printed and well bound, and are issued at prices fitted to make them universally accessible.

THE AMERICAN AGRICULTURAL ANNUAL.

We have just received from ORANGE JUDD & Co. their American Agricultural Annual for 1871. Though somewhat late in making its appearance, it is welcome for the multifarious information it contains.

Messrs. HARPER & BROTHERS have just republished the Diary of the Backgrd President in Paris, by HENRY LABOUCHERE, late M. P. for Middlesex. This diary attracted great attention when it first appeared in the London Daily News, and will now be found extremely well worth reading. There is a dry humor about Mr. LABOUCHERE'S letters, an originality of style, and a certain strongly marked individuality, which will cause them to be perused in their complete form with genuine interest. As a record of a memorable event in history, the book ought to find a place on everybody's shelves. But where did the publishers get the portrait of Mr. LABOUCHERE which adorns the cover? It is no more like the original than the moon is like a green cheese.

GEORGIA.

General Condition of Society in the Upper Augusta and Vicinity—Summerville—A Wintering Resort—Confederate Remains—Other Life.

From Our Special Correspondent.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Monday, April 3, 1871.

The South feels less whipped now than it did five years ago. Reconstruction so far has done nothing but to put unprincipled men in office—men who went into secession for the sake of office, and as soon as that concern was demolished, they went on their knees, and begging for pardon, obtained office under the new regime. The proper reconstruction, Sir, would have been to have kept the Southern States under the United States Government for ten years, until they begged for State Governments. Then the new condition of things between the two races would have lost its novelty, and the people would have become accustomed to it; men with some sense of justice would have come into power; our prosperity would have been regained, and the present condition of things, where the tendency is to fly apart rather than to come together, would not have existed, and the United States Government, instead of being a mere name, would have been treated with some respect in the South."

So said a leading citizen of Savannah, himself a Union man all through the war, to me on reading an account of one of DAVIS' speeches, where he spoke so hopefully of a future Confederacy, and on reading an "Ode to the Confederate Flag," in a local journal, advising its preservation, as it would be wanted again ere long—and undoubtedly the poem but expressed the feeling of the white minority in the South. The present aspect of affairs is regarded as something merely temporary, while the future triumph of the Democratic Party is to give them back what they so much desire—the right to do as they choose. Georgia is comparatively a quiet, prosperous State. In but three counties (Warren, Columbia and Jefferson) do we hear of any Ku-Klux outrages, and these are much exaggerated as they pass Northward. In the main, the people have settled down with an evident purpose to "accept the situation" and devote their energies to a restoration of their former prosperity.

AUGUSTA.

On the bank of the muddy Savannah, and right on the State line between South Carolina and Georgia, lies the pleasant City of Augusta. Laid out under royal charter in 1735, and incorporated as a city in 1817, Augusta is rightly considered as one of the most beautiful cities in Georgia, as it is the second in population and importance. Although formerly a thrifty, busy city, its business appears to have deserted it, and the stores seem to be merely objects of curiosity, and their daily process of opening and closing mere matters of habit. To this general rule of a decay of commercial prosperity, the cotton factories form a noticeable exception. About them everything seems gifted with energy and life, and the din of their machinery is heard not only all day but also all night, and "twenty per cent dividends" are their rule instead of exception. Water power sufficient for many more manufactories than have yet been built, has been secured by means of a canal nine miles in length, which brings the upper floods of the Savannah River to the city at an elevation of some forty feet. For some reason or other Augusta was the only city of any size in the South left untouched by Gen. SHERMAN in his famous "march to the sea," and the line of earth-works surrounding the city were not used either for purposes of offensive or defensive.

BEAUTIES OF THE CITY.

Augusta is renowned for the great width of some of its streets, of which Broad and Greene are the most prominent, the former being a sort of Broadway or business street, and the other more of a Fifth-avenue or boulevard. Greene-street is indeed beautiful. Nearly two hundred feet in breadth, with its four rows of thickly-planted shade-trees and the broad strip of green running down the centre for nearly a mile, and forming a well-appreciated pasture for the cows of the neighborhood, lined with residences, many of them pretensions to considerable architectural beauty, and all surrounded with well-kept gardens, redolent with the perfume from the many flowers, the cour d'œil is both novel and pleasing to the visitor used to the cramped and tortuous streets of his own city. On this street is the Court-house or Town Hall, flanked on either hand by a large fountain, and built in the centre of a well-shaded yard. Fronting this building rises a tall granite shaft, on which are cut the arms of the State and the names of "HALL, GWINNET and WATSON," the signers of the Declaration of Independence from the State of Georgia. To show how intelligent some of the Southern whites are, I asked of the janitor of the Court-house what that monument was there to commemorate, and he gravely informed me that one of the most important battles of the Revolution was fought on that very spot of ground, (20 by 20,) and the monument was erected to the memory of the illustrious dead!

The Fair Grounds are situated within the city limits and facing the cemetery. It is here that the great Fair of the Cotton States is held each year on the 2d of May. The grounds, though not large, are neatly laid out in the manner best calculated to subserve their purpose. A half-mile track is open at all times, and in the cool of the evening a dozen or more of gentlemen's equipages may be seen whirling around the inclosure. I rather like Augusta, but it has a quiet, dreamy, sleepy feeling in its very atmosphere that seems to breathe into you a spirit of laziness, and an aversion to anything like exertion.

SUMMERVILLE.

On a lofty range of sand-hills and at a distance of between two and three miles from the city is the beautiful "village" of Summerville. I am doubtful as to the application of the term "village" to this former Summer resort of the wealthy Augustans. It is in fact a collection of handsome Summer residences located along and on the ridge of hills from which in former times the place derived its name, and placed in easy communication with the neighboring city by a line of horse-cars which ply between the two places at least half a dozen times a day. On the summit of the hill is located the United States Arsenal, built in 1827, and now surrounded by a couple of companies of infantry. Near the Arsenal are the long range of workshops built by the Confederates during the war, raised above the level of Augusta by some 200 feet, commanding a fine view of the South Carolina hills, the Savannah River, the city and the rolling country around, in a region where sickness is hardly ever known, and where the air is freighted with health and strength for the invalid, with a cooling breeze at all times way up the tops of the tall pines, and abounding in pleasant walks and drives, while access to the city is so easily obtained, Summerville possesses many advantages for the sick that Aiken cannot obtain. The great difficulty in the way of rendering the place available as a resort is in the lack of boarding-places. All of the houses being private residences, it is well-nigh impossible to get rooms. Here is a fine chance for some Northern capitalist. As a spot known as "Millédes Place"—the highest on the hill, by the way,—is what a land-owner would call a most "eligible site" for a hotel. And a neat, well-kept hotel is all that the place needs to enable it successfully to compete with Aiken. I merely make this as a suggestion, leaving others to profit by it if they see fit. But I feel confident that it would prove a good investment, and all the more so from the fact that there is not a really first-class hotel in Augusta.

CONFEDERATE REMAINS.

At the base of the sand-hills and on the bank of the canal are situated the powder-mills, where were manufactured all the gunpowder used by the Confederates during the last two years of the war. These works, which stand as they were left in a dilapidated condition, were the most extensive works of the kind in the world. They extend for nearly three-fourths of a mile along the canal bank, and consist of thirteen mills, so built that if one should be blown up it would not in any way arrest the work going on in the others. It seems a pity that such splendid buildings should be allowed to go to ruin. It may be interesting to mention that where the powder-mills now are, was, in the early settlement of the city, the original Arsenal, where was quartered the United States garrison. But the place was so damp that it was found to be very unhealthy, and so the Arsenal was removed to its present locality in 1827.

SOURBRIDE HOTEL LIFE.

I close this letter with a few words about hotel life in the South. As a general thing a really good hotel is an exception in this section of the country, and the Kimball House at Atlanta is, I believe, the best hotel in the South. About this more anon. The great difficulty seems to be in the table. Take the Planter's Hotel in this place as an example; it is the best hotel by far in the place, but the table is atrocious. There is in fact hardly any pretense to cleanliness. The servants "assist" as waiters, (they are "ordered up,") and no two of them are clothed alike, and the very field hands on a plantation are cleaner than they; the food is cold when it gets to you, and judging by its looks you would not like to inquire very minutely as to where it came from. The rooms are large, but bare and uncomfortable. But this much may be said, that the clerks are polite and attentive to all, which in a hotel, like charity elsewhere, covers a "multitude of sins." They do their best, and what more can you ask?—only your bill, and that is four dollars per day. But I must stop, for it is almost time to take the train for Atlanta, from which semi-northern city you may expect to hear from me ere long. H. W. R.

PERSONAL, POLITICAL, AND GENERAL.

There have been two railroad accidents in Massachusetts this week, caused by the expansion of the rails by heat.

Mr. GEORGE PEABODY RUSSELL, of Salem, Mass., has purchased an estate in Bristol, R. I., and intends to make that place his permanent residence.

ALEXANDER H. STEPHENS has written a letter, expressing approval of the Mobile Register's article refusing to accept the Reconstruction acts as irrevocable facts and dead issues.

Concord, N. H., reports that the mercury stood at 22° in the shade there on Saturday at noon. Nothing like it was ever known before in April in that State.

Boston brewers report that although many towns in Massachusetts voted last Fall not to permit the sale of ale within their limits, there has not been any large reduction in the consumption since this law went into effect.

If President GRANT is not again to be a candidate the Des Moines (Iowa) Register urges that Hon. JAMES F. WILSON should be the Republican nominee for the Presidency, and says that the fact that he does not seek the office, or any other, better proves his fitness for it.

The Governor, Secretary of State, and Auditor of Ohio are, in pursuance of law, making a new apportionment of Senators and Representatives for the State Legislature under the new census. The apportionment will stand for ten years.

The Grand Jury of Luzerne County, Penn., has returned a true bill of indictment against BERNINGHOFF, Sr., and two of his sons, for compounding a felony. The BERNINGHOFFS are charged with attempting to settle the great robbery case with the thieves for the purpose of depriving the detectives of the reward offered by BERNINGHOFF. The trial has been postponed to the next term.

Judge FOSTER, lately, at Watertown, sentenced the Adams Banks burglars to Auburn State Prison, and not long after a dispatch was received from the Sheriff, announcing his safe arrival at Auburn with the prisoners. The dispatch was read in Court, and the Judge, hinting at the way the trial had been conducted, turned to the lawyer who had been the prisoners' counsel and asked if he had "any exceptions to take to the telegram."

The Mayor of Worcester, Mass., published this brief card in the papers of that city on Monday: "To JOHN MAHON, owner. The appearance of several young men, and one or two not so very young, about the streets yesterday afternoon, indicated that some of the drinking saloons might have been open. The undersigned, in a spirit of Christian love, rather than in any authoritative form, earnestly requests all keepers of saloons to be careful how they break the law of the Sabbath as well as the law of the land."

In charging the Grand Jury at Charleston, S. C., a few days ago, Judge BOND said: "The moment you let people understand that there can be no trifling with the laws of the United States, and that its Revenue laws, however trifling in their estimation, are sacred and must not be violated, you and I will do our duty, and will accomplish what we ought to accomplish in putting down of the greater violations in this State, and which, if we do not begin to suppress, will be an everlasting blot on the character of this State."

Ex-Gov. HARRIMAN, of New-Hampshire, has written another letter to Senator MORTON, in which he says: "We have redeemed Connecticut, and have done this under the crushing influence of our surprising defeat in New-Hampshire, and in the full blaze of the San Domingo discussion in the United States Senate. This result clearly justifies my brief letter to you concerning the disastrous defeat in my State. The Boston Journal, in this morning's issue, says, with significance, and I desire to emphasize that declaration, that the people of Connecticut 'have proved that New-Hampshire was lost wholly through local and temporary causes.' I believe this to be substantially true. But New-Hampshire will rise from this ordeal stronger and brighter than ever. Our internal difficulties will be removed, for every Republican now wills it."

The earnest Republicans of the old town of Southampton, in Suffolk County, achieved a most startling victory at the election of town officers on the 4th inst. It was whispered around among them that the other side were very busy, and were doing their utmost, quietly, to secure the defeat of the Republican Supervisor, Mr. WM. R. POST. Accordingly the Republicans determined to check-mate them, and most successful were they in the effort. Heretofore the town has polled about 250 or 400 votes, anything above the latter number being a very large vote. But on the 4th the Republicans got out all their men, and the result was a poll of 907 votes for Supervisor, of which their candidate received 571, and the opposition 336. The remainder of the Republican ticket fared all slighted, the majority being somewhat less, yet sufficiently large to satisfy everybody.

THE BUILDING RECORD.

Proposed New Buildings.

The following is the list of new buildings proposed for erection in this City since the last report and for the week ending Thursday, April 6, 1871. The record is an official one from the plans filed at the office of JAMES M. MAGGIGNON, Superintendent of the Department of Buildings:

BROWN-STONE FRONTS.

Ten first-class dwellings, New-avenue, front from Fordeth to Forty-first-street, 100 feet west of Fort-avenue, three stories, 40 by 50; C. O. BILLINGS, owner.

Four first-class dwellings, north side of Twenty-second-street, 100 feet west of Eighth-avenue, three stories, 18 by 47; JOHN H. MCCUNN, owner.

Four first-class dwellings, north-east corner of Lexington-avenue and Fifty-first-street, three stories, 18.9 by 49; JOHN G. CRAY, owner.

Four first-class dwellings, west side of Lexington-avenue, 25 feet south of Thirty-second-street, four stories, 18.9 by 50; J. L. BROWN, owner.

with party-walls. But it appeared that the grantee was a bona fide purchaser, without notice of the agreement, and that there was no failure of any material part of the consideration for the conveyance. In the case at bar the covenant complained of restricts and controls the use of the whole property, and everything therein is free elements. In respect to particular localities also have recently occasioned their demands, and these premises, although intended for and recognized to a certain age, may in a few years be available only for the very purposes which said covenant prohibits. The plaintiff had notice of said covenant. It is a matter of record; its express provisions are in the deed to his ancestor from whom he derives title. If he desired to rid himself of the burdens of the provisions, he should have made the sale subject thereto. Having omitted this, specific performance cannot be decreed. The decree must have judgment in this form: for the sum of $2,000, the amount paid by him on account of said purchase, with interest thereon from Dec. 1, 1870, and the further sum of $100 as paid for examination of the title, and costs.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

EUROPE.

The Versailles forces have driven the insurgents from Meudon, and repulsed them at Bagneux. Paris cannons and forts have been shelled, but still hold out. Asnieres has been occupied by the Nationals. Firing is still going on at Porte Maillot and in the Bois de Boulogne. The Communist authorities have seized the plate in the Foreign Office, and made a demand upon the Church for 1,000,000 francs, threatening to kill the Archbishop if it is not forthcoming. M. Favre says the Government has the sympathies of all European nations. Thiers has issued another reassuring circular. The official journal declares that Napoleonism and Communism are dead. A deputation has left Paris for Versailles to propose measures of conciliation. The continuance of the Republic and the municipal franchises of Paris, and its protection by the National Guard, will be insisted on.

CONGRESS.

In the Senate, yesterday, the resolution admitting GOLDTHWAITE, of Alabama, and BLODGETT, of Georgia, to seats, was laid on the table by 19 yeas to 17 nays. A revenue reform resolution was offered by Mr. SHERMAN, of Ohio, favoring a reduction of revenue to the amount needed for actual expenses. It was laid over. The Amnesty bill was received from the House, and notice given that a motion would be made for its consideration before the end of the session. The Kuklux bill occupied the rest of the day, but no vote was reached.

In the House the day was spent on the Deficiency bill. The extravagance of the Senate amendments was condemned, and several members took occasion to ventilate their views on finances generally. Several amendments of minor importance were voted on, and the subject then went over.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

In the Senate yesterday a large number of minor bills were rapidly considered and passed, when the morning session was ended. In the evening the Senate ordered a few bills to a third reading, and after transacting a little routine business adjourned. In the Assembly business was blocked by the Weed-Irving difficulty, as the investigating Committee announced that they were unable to make a report, so the Speaker adjourned the House, in accordance with the resolution passed on Monday evening. In the evening session the Committee reported a resolution adjudging IRVING guilty of a breach of privilege, and that had he remained a member he would have deserved the severest punishment. The report was accepted by an unanimous vote, and the matter is ended. Some routine legislative business was then hurried through, and the Assembly adjourned.

GENERAL.

WILLIAM HARRISON, a resident of Central Falls, R. I., was fatally injured by a freight-train on the Hartford Road, near Sterling, Conn., on Saturday night.

Col. FISK's letter to Mayor GASTON, of Boston, requesting the hospitalities of the city to the Ninth New-York Regiment on its proposed visit to Boston in June next, has been presented to the Board of Aldermen, who laid the document on the table.

Hereafter every patrolman of the New-York Police is expected to properly salute, on meeting or passing, a Commissioner, the Superintendent, an Inspector, a Captain, a Sergeant or Roundsman, of his own or any other precinct.

The Mississippi River is now open to navigation. The ice went out of Lake Pepin Saturday.

Police is uniform. This is intended as a matter of discipline.

In the case of JOHN J. CAREY, who died from the effects of a beating received at the hands of a gang of ruffians, in this City, on St. Patrick's Day, the Coroner's jury rendered a verdict, yesterday, that CAREY met his death at the hands of persons unknown to them.

THOMAS HODGES, a notorious ruffian and horse-thief, who had mortally wounded a man near Staunton, Va., was taken from the jail, early yesterday morning, by a mob, who hanged him a short distance out of town. None of the leaders were disguised, but were utter strangers to the Sheriff and jailer, who attempted to thwart their purpose.

The Watervliet (N. Y.) town election has resulted in a Republican triumph by an average majority. The town includes West Albany, West Troy and Green Island.

Heavy rain and wind storms are reported in Iowa and Wisconsin, which have done considerable damage.

The Methodist Conference at Peekskill adjourned yesterday sine die. A decrease of 250 in the membership is reported. Bishop CLARK is in a more comfortable condition.

The official canvass of the vote for State officers in Connecticut has been postponed until the first inst. The vote was so close that unofficial certificates were only issued to Congressmen-elect STORRS, STARKWEATHER and BARNUM, Mr. KELLOGG being denied his on a counter claim to the seat from his opponent.

J. B. BREWER, editor of the Fairfield County (Conn.) Democrat, while attempting yesterday morning to get upon a moving train of cars at Bridgeport, fell beneath the wheels. His leg was broken, and he was mangled and severely injured about the body and head.

The following is the specie list per steamship Bishop Star, from San Francisco: F. PRAGER & Co., $40,212; LAMAN & KEAR, $2,000; RUSS & MUNDY, $620; E. DOOSEY & Co., $150. Total, $44,082.

MOSES S. TERWILLIGER, who choked his mother to death in Ulster County, New-York, has made a full confession and described the manner of his crime.

An extensive fire occurred yesterday at Elmira, on Water-street, when an aggregate loss of $15,000 was occasioned.

The fair for the relief of the destitute in France has been opened in Boston, and promises to be a great success.

The Taxes.

Senator SHERMAN shows that he correctly appreciates the popular sentiment, by introducing a resolution for the purpose of instructing the Finance Committee to inquire into the best means of reducing the taxes. It cannot be said that the people are ignorantly impatient of taxation. They have borne almost without a murmur a drain upon their pockets which, perhaps, no other Government could have ventured to make upon a nation, and now they feel that substantial relief ought to be afforded them. Nothing would give so much popularity to the Administration as a sensible and judicious reduction of taxation in all directions. Some imposts ought to have been swept away long ago. The income tax is the most obnoxious of all, and as we have repeatedly pointed out, the amount of money which it brings in bears no proportion to the irritation it causes. We have not heard so much about it this year, because the tax-collector has not yet been his rounds. But when the money is demanded again, there is sure to be a fresh outcry. Every assessment paper may be regarded as a "campaign document" in the interests of the Democratic Party. It is impossible in these days for people to go on paying the income tax with cordial feelings toward the party in power. There was a promise that it should be rescinded, and to keep it in existence another year is to put the patience of the public to a very unnecessary and impudent test.

Mr. SHERMAN proposes to ascertain by inquiry in what way the tariff levies can be most advantageously reduced. It is possible, we hope, to satisfy the revenue reformers without playing into the hands of the ultra free-traders. That the free-traders number among them many active and thoughtful members of the party cannot be doubted. But the bulk of the people wish to make proper provision for the gradual liquidation of the debt, and they know that the current expenses of the Government cannot be raised without duties. To make the sudden change in our financial system which the free-traders demand, would not only be a costly but a very hazardous experiment. We shall be ready for free trade at some future time, but due preparation is needed for so great a revolution in our fiscal system. If Republican free-traders insist upon voting for a Democratic candidate who supports their views, rather than for one of their own party who desires to proceed cautiously, they will not carry the majority of the people with them. Those who demand prudent revenue reforms are much more entitled to attention. They have the West very largely with them, and their cause is one which everywhere appeals to the popular sympathies. If Mr. SHERMAN's resolution leads to a careful discussion of a complex question, and gives rise to a wise compromise upon it, he will have been the means of doing good service to even that section of his party which is at present in favor of maintaining prohibitive duties.

We have made immense progress towards paying off the debt, and now the people require a little breathing space. Without desiring to transfer the burden to a remote posterity, it is only reasonable to hold that the expenses of a war which was fought for the benefit of all future comers should not be endured by a single generation. There must be time given for the payment of so vast an amount. The strain has been very severe upon the tax-payers for some years past, and now they have earned the right to appeal for relief. The Democratic Party will propose in a vague way to do without taxation altogether, but in the cities where they already rule it is not found that they are able or willing to carry their theories into practice. They not only cannot do without money, but they resort to contrivances for raising it which have hitherto been unknown to constitutional Governments. If New-York is an example of what could be done under a Democratic system of raising taxes and spending them, very few people would be desirous of seeing the Republicans turned out. We can, however, do better than we have yet done, and by avoiding the counsel of extremists on both sides, the wishes of the people generally can be satisfied without risk of sacrificing any important interests.

Compulsory Education in Pennsylvania.

Considering the startling increase of crimes of every sort, almost directly traceable to ignorance, it is hard to resist the conclusion that compulsory education affords the only promise of relief from the growing danger. It has been tried elsewhere, with gratifying results, and we have more than once expressed ourselves in favor of trying it here. But it must be remembered, at the same time, that this is a radical remedy, and must be handled with the utmost delicacy and caution, to secure its true benefits. At first sight it certainly looks like an unpardonable infringement on the liberty of the subject, and although in a case like this, individual right must give way to the public good, the arbitrariness of the encroachment need not be so insisted on as to make it naturally unpopular law, doubly obnoxious. Every point, at least, should be taken to conciliate in its favor the feelings of that more uncultivated class of the community on whose suffrages it must depend almost entirely for its support. Ignorance hugs its errors as the owl, so oddly miscalled the bird of wisdom, clings to its native darkness; and the example of that resolute ignoramus in one of the Eastern States, who threatens to resist with violence any attempt to educate his children, is apt to be contagious. In framing any such act the utmost care should be had to avoid giving unnecessary offense to the prejudices or convictions of any class, but more especially of the enlightened few who alone can be counted on as probable supporters of the system.

Such caution does not seem to have been exercised in preparing the bill lately introduced into the Pennsylvania Legislature, which requires the attendance at school during six months of the year of all children between the ages of seven and fourteen years. This rigid limitation seems unnecessarily arbitrary, and in other respects unwise. It is doubtful whether, in our climate at least, children are not more hurt than benefited by being put to books at so tender an age as seven, and many competent observers have declared their conviction that the tasks which a child is forced to learn before its mind is tolerably mature, add nothing to its mental growth, but tend rather to retard its physical powers. Unhealthy precocity is so common, and so frequently fatal among American children, that our efforts should be directed rather to set back than to anticipate the period of mental maturity. Most children with us, of any brightness, teach themselves to read, and otherwise astonish their fond parents by a phenomenal intellectual activity which is too often followed and explained by an early decay. Precisely at what age a child's mind becomes strong enough to bear the strain of cultivation, it is not easy to fix. Perhaps it is safe to say that up to the age of ten years, at least, the little learner should be put to only the lightest and most desultory tasks.

Doubtless this will seem an extraordinary view to many, who have so long been used to the cramming and forcing system of education in vogue among us, as to believe it the only true one. But waiving this point, there is another objection to the Pennsylvania bill which is equally strong, and which will strike most parents with even greater force. The question of the comparative advantages of home and school education, discussed so long ago as QUINTILIAN's time, has been practically decided, so far, at least, as boys in their teens are concerned, in favor of the schools. But for some years after the age of seven, the child is probably best and most safely instructed at home. His moral character is then in process of formation, and that no teacher can mold so well or so wisely as a tender and pious mother, and a prudent father. To be sure, many children are unhappily not blessed with such parents as these, and many more again have no homes. For these, at least for the latter, the school at any age is undoubtedly better than the streets, though a good reformatory institution, wisely modeled and carefully conducted, would be better still. But for children whose home influences are salutary and happy, the law should make some discrimination. The laws of Pennsylvania do not directly concern us, but each success or failure of the compulsory education system does. Wherever it is tested, we should like to see it tested on its merits, and not weighted with needlessly-offensive restrictions.

The Response from the Country.

The comments made by the country upon the great reform meeting held at the Cooper Institute last Thursday is encouraging, inasmuch as it denotes wide-spread interest. But it likewise conveys grave admonition. When Mr. EVARTS said, "It will no longer be a pride, but a shame and disgrace, to be a New-Yorker, if New-Yorkers cannot lift themselves out of the infamy into which they have sunk," he anticipated the warning which the respectable Press throughout the country has now echoed back to the Metropolis. Our citizens should realize the full significance of this. Submission to base and dishonest government inevitably entails a share in the disgrace of it. It is worse than folly for people to shrug their shoulders at the rascalities of Tammany, and pass on, saying it is very bad, but they cannot help it. The country says you can, and must, and ought to help it. The country feels that this stigma of rascality and misrule is doing the whole community great injury all over the world. It is impossible that it should be otherwise. New-York may not be the United States, as Paris was France; but she is at least so in a financial sense.

This is everywhere known; and when a definite and imposing step is taken toward a reform of the abuses under which we suffer, the country responds substantially as follows: "We rejoice that you, the respectable community of New-York, are at last not only alive to the shameful condition of things around and about you, but that you profess a willingness to take practical action to remedy it. You on the spot are not the only sufferers, and our feeling in the matter is not one of mere sentiment alone. We feel and know that the whole nation is implicated in the scandal, that all the people are participators in the injury. Perhaps you are not altogether aware of the deplorable figure which is presented by a community, theoretically free, but yet voluntarily submitting to monstrous abuses such as those that now override you. It is not easy to see ourselves as others see us. Therefore we, your brethren, the indirect sufferers from these evils as you are the direct ones, will take the opportunity afforded by this meeting to tell you a little wholesome truth. New-York is fast becoming the by-word and scorn of all America. Corruption does not go backward any more than revolution does. Unchecked, it spreads like a cancer to infect and strike run to the whole body-politic. Already this disease, beginning in New-York, has extended to Albany. We now see plainly that it threatens to extend to Washington. You who are on the spot can, if you will, prevent this; and we see with joy that you declare you mean to try. This is well; but you must act as well as talk. You must be up and doing, for the enemy already has knowledge of your intentions, and will prepare to baffle them."

Such is the general sentiment and hope of the people outside New-York, as conveyed through their best representatives. It is the duty of our leading citizens to respond to that sentiment. The fair fame of the City is, to some extent, the fair fame of the country, and the obligation which rests upon us of vindicating it does not depend upon the expediency of correcting local abuses alone. That public feeling is at last aroused, that some fitting sense of the humiliation of our position as inhabitants of the capital of the continent is at last emphatically expressed, is, of course, a good point gained. But without undervaluing the importance of this, we must remember that, having regard to practical results, nothing is done until all is done. A spirit of restlessness under our present misgovernment is unquestionably abroad. There is a strong disposition among thinking men to resist the usurpations of cliques, the tyrannies of corporations, and the unwarrantable extortions of selfish capitalists. The tendency to make the good of the many subservient to the good of the few, a tendency strikingly opposed to the spirits of our institutions, has grown of late so notorious, and has been pushed with such audacity as to excite great fears. These have found different forms of expression, but they must find, to be effectual, persistent and strenuous focus.

Nothing short of energetic and unremitting effort on the part of all well-disposed people will bring us to the goal of reform; and this effort should be led and inspired by prominent merchants and other citizens of stainless repute. It is not a question of party, for party is of less consequence than good government. We are glad to see honest Democrats join hands with honest Republicans in this matter. Conspicuous and life-long Democrats were active at the Cooper Institute meeting, and before this fight is over there will be plenty more of that party on the same side. What is wanted is ceaseless agitation, active personal efforts to induce the apathetic and influential to engage in the strife, and a useful application of that public opinion which the Press—albeit, as Judge BARRETT says, in a "noble minority"—can be depended upon to create.

With these aids, all wholesome and upright reforms can surely be attained. A pure Bench, an honest use of public money, transportation both in City and State with some fair regard to the people's interests, as well as those of the capitalists, cleanly streets, and the firm repression of the army of criminals, thieves, gamblers, and the like, who now run riot with impunity by virtue of their party claims—all these, and other good ends, we can battle for and secure. Such fruits of victory may seem at the moment too great to be realized, but history is made fast in these days, and just as the slave-holder's rebellion was grappled with and crushed, so may be the very worst section of the slave-holder's Northern allies. The present task will demand, it is true, much of the same perseverance and inflexible resolution that were required for the discharge of the former one, and these we hope and feel sure will not be looked for in vain.

The Universal Republic.

We have more than once adverted to the growing significance of the great Democratic federation originated by MAZZINI, and known to the outside world as "the Universal Republic." Like other dreams of the Italian revolutionary thinker and arch-conspirator, it has outlived the time when it was laughed at, and now begins to make itself feared. GARIBALDI's soldiers fought in the Vosges under its banner, and the insurgents of Paris have issued their manifestoes in its name. It has fairly emerged upon the stage of history as a principle and a system, and brief as the present sovereignty of the Communists may be in Paris, this struggle is but the first outburst of a new force that may shake every monarchy in Europe before it has spent its volcanic energy, and found its true place in politics. Several months ago we said that the time was approaching for the fulfillment of the premature utterance of MAZZINI: "The wars of the dynasties have ended, the wars of the people are about to begin." The more we see of the plans and professions of the Parisian Communists, the more apparent it becomes that they are not merely the birth of a period of national chaos and administrative impotence, but form the first decided advance of a great democratic crusade. Whether with due understanding and appreciation or not, the body of artisans and political bohemians who called themselves the Central Committee, promulgated doctrines coined by some of the most daring thinkers of Europe. The detailed report just received of the terms in which they delegated a portion of their powers to the newly-elected members of the Commune, gives ample evidence of this. The sentiment of country is for the first time in great political movements set aside; the sentiment of class appears for the first time as a revolutionary power. The municipal Commune, self-contained and self-governed, is to be the base of a new charter of municipal liberties. Federated with the Communes of France who have already liberated themselves, Paris will, in its own name and in the name of Lyons, Marseilles, and, perhaps, of ten other cities, conclude the alliance of the continent which shall unite them with the nation, and state the ultimate terms of the treaty which they may agree to sign." Such is the language held by the official journal of the Insurgent Committee. France is to be treated with as a separate power, and the only attachment expressed to their common country is by reason of its affording a promising basis for a Communist propaganda, which is defined as having for its principles "the spirit of order, of progress and of justice, that is to say, of revolution."

Readers of Zothoar may, in the light of recent events, be coming round to the opinion that the Modre Nisiera was not a piece of political romancing after all. Substitute for "Mary Anne" the Commune, and for the political, social, and religious organization of DESRAYES's book the federation of great cities, i. e., of artisan voters, which is the first practicable stage of the universal Republic—and there is a key to a great political movement of which we are only witnessing the beginnings. International congresses of working men at Basle and elsewhere have, of late years, propounded amid general amusement ambitious schemes for the reconstruction of Europe on a democratic basis. It was freely admitted that in France universal suffrage would not serve their turn. For, as M. CLEMENT DUVERNOIS, in a manifesto recently published in the interests of NAPOLEON III., defines the party that is prepared to abide by the united expression of the national will: "In England we should be Tories, and in France we are Democrats, because in England property is concentrated, while in France it is divided." The insurrection of the Communists is a protest against the conservative tendencies of the country voters, and an appeal to an assumed solidarity of interests, first among all the working men of France, and next of all Europe—with a present exception against the Germans.

The revolt is, therefore, a social, quite as much as a political one. Like most social rebellions, it is the product of industrial distress, and of the bleak prospect for the future that presents itself to the French laborer. The artificial production stimulated by the Empire has collapsed, and the thousands of idle men to be found in the streets of Paris have, like most ignorant communists, a belief in the sovereign efficacy of state aid in placing labor upon a proper footing. The English Chartists believed that the acceptance of their five points would act like a charm upon depressed manufactures and famine prices of bread. According to the testimony of a Parisian, "the Commune is a magic word among our insurgents, a veritable talisman which must heal all the evils from which they suffer, even those which are most directly derived from the vices and the misconduct of individuals." It may be as the same critic alleges, that "the success of the Committee demonstrates once more that in France the vaguest words are the most potent." It is clear, all the same, that the new political creed will survive its approaching subjugation to the armed force of the Assembly, and will add another to the many distracting forces that will render the France of the future the political powder-magazine of Europe.

Buying and Selling at Albany.

The plans of the Democratic masters of the Legislature are all out of joint through "Jim" Irving's little mistake. A few days since, the magnates of the "Ring" were in high glee; everything was propitious; the party was well in hand, and obeying without question the nod of the "Boss;" the Registry law was so amended as to render null the Election laws passed by Congress to secure purity of the ballot; the Two per Cent. Tax Levy bill, by which money was to be raised from the tax-payers of the City of New-York for the election of a Democratic President in 1872, was well on its way. It had passed the Senate, and was to be "put through" the Assembly under the party lash. Now, both will fail, unless some Republican can be found base enough to sell his vote to aid the passage of the laws intended to perpetuate in this State the power of Tammany. It is to be regretted that there is anything in the practices of legislators to suggest the idea that the "Ring" may force its measures through the Legislature by sheer corruption. It is, however, a notorious fact that votes are a favorite marketable commodity at Albany.

TWEED and SWEENY have time and again disavowed political connection with IRVING, giving as a reason for their seeming countenance of him that he was so strong in his district that it was impossible to defeat him. It was, however, unnecessary to place him on the "Ring" ticket for Alderman. The strength of IRVING in his district did not extend to the whole City. In procuring the resignation of IRVING, TWEED was not prompted by any motive of justice, or deference to public opinion. He was driven to the wall, and forced to choose between two alternatives. Either IRVING must be expelled, or Mr. WEED, and, perhaps, some others of the country members would resign. To get rid of IRVING was the best chance. TWEED has now announced that he can have half a dozen Republican votes to pass his bills if required. This is mere bravado. The iniquity of the bills before the Legislature has been thoroughly exposed, and if Republicans vote for them, it can only be because they have been bribed. NATHANIEL SANDS (price $10,000 a year, besides "perquisites") and PETER COOPER tried to win Republican Senators to the support of the Two per Cent. Tax bill, and failed. The attempt of TWEED to corrupt members of the Assembly should meet with no more success than the Citizens' Association achieved with Senators. There can hardly be found a man so anxious to brand himself a traitor as to accept the gold of the "Ring," in the vain hope of escaping the punishment of his crime by hiding behind NATHANIEL SANDS.

MINOR TOPICS.

It is satisfactory to find that the Legislature has unanimously approved the report of the Investigating Committee on the Weed-Irving controversy. Irving was doubtless guilty of what he stated the world only pretends to consider a crime—of extortion by remaining in the Legislature. The conduct of some of the strikers, though, seems to show that the individual who in the heat of them, may possibly act as a scoundrel, may be a good citizen in other respects. We hope, for the credit of the New-York delegation, that though a man may literally fight his way to Albany, pugilistic ability cannot find a legitimate sphere on the floor of the Assembly. Our correspondence indicates that the present balance of parties will cause the abandonment of the infamous two per cent. tax-levy scheme. The usual tax levy that will take its place will probably involve a number of great reformations, but these we shall have been directly studied by our own representatives, and shall accordingly have a more immediate remedy at hand.

The Commune is making a stubborn fight in and around Paris. The Assembly is clearly not yet in possession of a force large and reliable enough for the difficult task they have got in hand. The breach made in the Porte Maillot has been successfully repaired by the insurgents, and the entry into Paris of the Versailles troops is yet again postponed. Every day that the Reds continue to hold the capital will make the task of keeping down their sympathizers in Lyons, Marseilles, and elsewhere, a more difficult one. M. THIERS and his colleagues are on their trial, and unless their confident manifestoes are followed by vigorous acts and tangible successes, they will find it hard to maintain much longer their hold upon France.

Superintendent KELSO has issued a new manual of etiquette for the City Police force. A patrolman must, henceforward, give the approved military salute on meeting any member of the half-dozen superior grades of officials, and on coming into the awful presence of the Commissioners, the Superintendent, or the Inspectors, "members of the force will salute by removing their caps." We trust that our patrolmen will not feel disposed to take revenge for all this rather cumbrous ceremonial by failing in their accustomed courtesy to citizens who may desire their help or counsel. It is just possible that members of this force may be inspired to forget that they are after all the servants of the community, and not actually paid out of the pockets of the gentlemen who demand so many demonstrations of respect.

The debate on the Deficiency bill gave an opportunity to the Democracy for indulging in the usual vituperation of the Administration and the Republican Party. The chances were rung upon extravagance, usurpation, centralization and executive taxes. Give us the power, say they, and we will abolish all taxes, except those on tobacco, spirituous and malt liquors—about free rum is a Democratic principle—and reduce the tariff to the lowest revenue point. We have pointed out in another article the true value of this promise. The City of New-York is and has been for years under Democratic rule, and each year the taxes are increased. Here the Democrats have a free field in which to practice their teachings. If they would avail themselves of it, reduce the taxes, and administer the affairs of the City with economy, then some faith might be placed in their promises. With New-York City as an example of taxation, and the management of the canal as one of economy, the people will be likely to estimate the professions of the Democrats in Congress at their proper worth.

From the latest advices it will be seen that the mining troubles are as far as ever from settlement. The meeting between the operators and committee of miners adjourned yesterday, without arriving at any agreement. The Working Men's Benevolent Association refuse to accept the terms proposed by the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company, and the road refuses to offer any better. A general gloom pervades the whole community, and fears are entertained of further serious proceedings. No attempt has been made at resumption, and three of the rioters of last week were arrested and held for trial, the leaders of the Working Men's Benevolent Association becoming bail for them. The matter can have but one termination. The miners will be compelled to yield; work must be resumed in some of the mines as soon as men have resolved not to starve, or permit their families to do so, at the command of an organization, no matter how powerful.

The warm weather which prevailed on Monday, during the progress of the peace procession through the City Hall Park, afforded an opportunity for testing the durability of the "Ring" politics pavement. It is almost unnecessary to say that it proved to be no better than the vile stuff that caused so much annoyance to the residents of Fifth-avenue in 1869. The horses' hoofs and carriage-wheels cut it up so badly that all the efforts of the laborers yesterday failed to restore the even surface, which it was hoped might remain until the rest of the walks had been coated with the same costly material.

The cotton crop now arriving at the cotton ports of the South, promises to be the largest since the famous one of 1859-60. The Savannah Republican, basing its estimate on the number of bales already received, says that the crop will reach 3,750,000 to 4,000,000 bales. By reason of its increased railroad connections, Savannah is fast taking position as one of the principal cotton ports of the South. This large crop establishes the facts that the freedman is willing to work, and that the land, being divided among a large number, is more carefully cultivated.

St. Andrew's Sunday-School Fair—A Very Attractive Exhibition.

A Fair was opened, last evening, in the new Sunday-school attached to St. Andrew's Protestant Episcopal Church, One Hundred and Twenty-eighth-street, near Fourth-avenue. The Fair is under the auspices of a committee of ladies, and the proceeds are to be applied toward furnishing the new building with suitable furniture. Up to Sunday last the Sunday-school had been held in the basement of the church, but on Easter Sunday the worthy pastor, Rev. GEO. B. DRAPER, had the pleasure of welcoming 400 pupils to the new building, which is fitted up with all modern improvements. It is a two-story brick building, sixty feet long by forty feet in width, and has cost $18,000, the greater part of which has been contributed by Mr. DRAPER's parishioners.

The Fair, judging from the attendance last evening, promises to be a success. It is well supplied with all articles usually found in such places; fancy articles of every description, perfumery, confectionery, books and stationery, children's dresses, dolls, worsted work, besides many articles of a more useful and substantial nature, such as chairs valued at $100 each, a gilt mounted table, valued at $100, an elegant piano stool, a gilt hat-rack, sewing-machines, [illegible] and a [illegible] gilt flower stand, [illegible]

Fourteenth-street Theatre.

Under the auspices of Miss LAURA KEENE, the doors of the theatre in Fourteenth-street, last night, once more threw open for a season of English drama. (The actress [illegible] in [illegible] Mrs. W. E. WILLIAMS and Mr. [illegible] and the final benefit in the course of the Fair, to-morrow afternoon, when [illegible] will be given, to meet apparently [illegible] recovery, handsome and fine [illegible] Miss Bronson and Miss Mary [illegible] last evening, a thriving [illegible] Ladies' Department.

A novel feature in the Fair is a [illegible] with Kensington Branch [illegible] the sale of fancy articles [illegible] in connection with the Fair, which is not [illegible] Superintendent of the school is Mr. [illegible] MARSH, and the Treasurer is Mr. [illegible] WILLIAMS.

The Fair will remain open until Friday [illegible]

[illegible] is not easy to assign even one reason [illegible] novelty-loving public [illegible] ways. The Fourteenth-street Theatre is however convenient, pretty, and in fair [illegible] to a large number of fashionable dwellings and hotels. Without entering into the various reasons for the population, we yet merely give voice to a common conversation when we say that the theatre is exceedingly enjoyable. Still Miss KEENE is so well esteemed, both as actress and manager, that it has been felt if any one could bring up the prestige of a declining property she might do so. To accomplish this desirable result she last night offered a variety of attractions, of which a new translation of English reputation, and a new play from a known and clever hand, were made most conspicuous.

Mr. CRESWICK, the tragedian in question, is new, we should explain, only in a relative sense. Years ago Mr. CRESWICK was known and esteemed in this country, and, at the old Tremont Theatre, in Boston, was at one time a great favorite. Since then he has acted chiefly in England, and for a number of seasons has [illegible] one of that famous temple of high-strained theatricals, the London Surrey. Mr. CRESWICK was always acknowledged, in fact, to be an excellent actor of melodrama. Yet his position in the higher walks has not been disputed, and as various Shakespearean characters he has been warmly praised by competent critics. In the part of Joe, in "Nobody's Child," Mr. CRESWICK is exceedingly effective. He shows in it the valuable fruits of rare experience grafted upon indubitable natural aptitude. His performance is strong, natural and in parts exceedingly pathetic. He "fills the stage" in a manner possible to very few; and his grasp upon the sympathy and attention of the audience is never for a moment relaxed. We consider Mr. CRESWICK's delivery the contrast to have been decidedly successful. He was cordially received by the public, repeatedly charged during the performance, and called before the curtain to receive the general congratulations.

Miss KEENE is a comparatively artist to all the [illegible] and has return in New-York [illegible] in as many points another illustration of the familiar truth. In her double capacity of director and actress she received, last evening, abundant tokens of approval and commendation, and certainly succeeded in make prominent the [illegible] as hardly any lady known to us could have done. Some [illegible] in Miss KEENE's performance, attributable, no doubt, to the excitement and anxiety of opening with a new company in a new character and with a heavy burden of responsibility on her shoulders, will doubtless be corrected in future representations. The company gathered to support the chief artiste is, so far as can be judged from their opening efforts, of rather ordinary calibre. The scenery and other appointments are exceedingly creditable, and the "[illegible]" of the second act, in which Joe [illegible] into the ravine and is rescued to the surface by Pudge, was loudly applauded.

Of "Nobody's Child," as a literary production there is not much to be said. It is of rather a conventional type of romantic drama, although certainly endowed with some rather novel and striking incidents, and although the character of Joe is by no means destitute of freshness and originality. When Mr. WILKIE PHILLIPS first began to write for the stage he passed through an unusual experience. His initial business his work was not good. Had it been more sketchy and superficial it might have been much more successful. His "Joseph Chevigny" was a curious instance of this. The drama was taken from the French, no doubt, but it displayed, notwithstanding a great deal of creative power, a deep yet delicate knowledge of human nature, and an unusual firmness of touch. In spite of this, and in spite of the superlatively good acting of Mr. BENJAMIN WEBSTER, as the remarkably hero—who was hooted, too, to the manifest fear to Adelphi audiences by a characteristic ruffian introduced to PAUL BERNARD—"Joseph Chevigny" failed. It was the victim of over-elaboration and too much subtlety of thought. It is easy to see how the author of such a piece might resolve not to shoot over the heads of his public in future. Accordingly, "Nobody's Child" comes to us as a "grand sensation drama," and aims to win success by devices that would hardly have been employed some time back by the author of "Joseph Chevigny." Still, it contains many of the surest elements of popularity, and when acted and directed by so thorough a master of his art as Mr. CRESWICK it will always delight a general audience. This certainly was the case last night, and if the people can be induced to go to the Fourteenth-street Theatre at all, it may well be the case for many nights to come.

MISS DEMOREST'S CONCERT.

Miss VIENNA DEMOREST's concert at Steinway Hall occurs this evening. The young lady will be assisted by Mlle. TEDESCO, by Mr. J. R. THOMAS, and by Mr. W. J. HILL.

MISS REEE'S CONCERTS.

Miss CARRIE REEE, a young songstress from Philadelphia, is to give two concerts at Steinway Hall, one on Monday and the other on Saturday next. Miss REEE has a voice of vast range, for in a cadenza to the air "Caro Nome," from "Rigoletto," it attains to the G sharp in altissimo. She will have, on the occasions mentioned, the co-operation of Miss ADELAIDE PHILLIPS, of Signor LEONI, and of Signor BONCONI, and a full orchestra under Mr. BERGMANN will also be heard.

Wrongs of Working Men—Strange Story About the Harlem Court-House Job.

The working men engaged in the construction of the new Harlem Court-house, at the corner of Sixth-avenue and One Hundred and Twenty-eighth-street, have "struck," on occasions of their employers' refusal to reduce their time of labor to eight hours a day. The men make load complaints about the injustice with which they have been treated. They say that they were compelled to do overwork without receiving any extra pay, being kept at work ten hours instead of eight, which is the usual

Facts and Fictions About the New-York Appointments.

The Kuklux Bill in the Senate—The House Employed on the Deficiency Bill—Various Matters.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Senator CONKLING had read in the Senate today a dispatch from this city to the New-York Tribune of last Saturday, which pretended to give an account of the proceedings in Executive Session at the time of the confirmation of the last appointments at New-York. He denied the truthfulness of the dispatch in any particular, and his statement was made in the presence of his fellow Senators, who, being acquainted with the facts, acknowledged their truth by remaining silent. Mr. CONKLING's denial of the Tribune dispatch was [illegible] the rules of the Senate [illegible] in which the session, and only allowed [illegible] to take place. The Friday [illegible] gave all the facts of any importance in this case, but Mr. CONKLING's [illegible] having called renewed attention to it, [illegible] further particulars are proper to be given. The Tribune dispatch referred to, contained two [illegible] of Republican Senators, the first [illegible] of Senators whom, it stated, were [illegible] absent or being present, refused to vote. It was as follows: Ames, Buckingham, Cragin, Fenton, Ferry of Michigan, Hitchcock, Logan, Morrill of Maine, Norton, Patterson, Pomeroy, Pool, Ramsey, Rice, Schurz, Sherman, Sumner, Tipton, Trumbull, Wilson, Window. Now the truth is that each of the Senators in this list were present and voted, and voted for confirming the nominations. No Republican voted in opposition. It should be remembered that the votes called only on Mr. DARLING's motion, [illegible] Ferry of Michigan, Hitchcock, Logan, Pomeroy, Pool and Scott. The Tribune dispatch further says: "The following-named Senators spoke or were otherwise prominent in opposing the change: Buckingham, Cragin, Fenton, Logan, Morrill, Morton, Patterson, Schurz, Scott, Sumner, Wilson." The statement is false, except in relation to Fenton, Patterson, Schurz, Sumner and Wilson, who sat in their seats and refused to vote, in the vain hope of breaking up a quorum on that day. Buckingham, Logan and Scott voted for the confirmation as stated above. MORTON took no part on either side, and on the day when the vote was taken was confined to his room by sickness all day. Whether the MORRILL mentioned is of Vermont or Maine is uncertain, but neither of them opposed the change. CRAGIN left the Senate early in the session, and neither opposed nor favored the change in any way, but says he should probably have voted for confirmation had no been present.

MR. MUDGETT'S RESIGNATION.

In view of the statements contained in Mr. B.F. MUDGETT's letter of resignation as to the reasons why his appointment was distasteful to the President, it is proper to state that those reasons are on file in the Treasury Department in the shape of documents, which satisfy the President that his appointment was not a proper one to be made. These documents have been on file a long time, but were not known to Secretary BOUTWELL until after he approved the nomination.

THE KUKLUX BILL.

Mr. EDMUNDS began the discussion on the Kuklux bill, as it is called in the Senate, this morning, by explaining its provisions and the amendments proposed by the Judiciary Committee. Mr. AMES followed in a speech which was pretty strongly personal in its references to BLAIR, and paid him back in his own coin, as he deserved. AMES proved that as a carpet-bagger BLAIR has, as Billings would say, few equals and no superiors. If being a carpet-bagger is a disgrace, FRANK BLAIR is disgraced forever. Mr. JOHNSTON, of Virginia, spoke about an hour and a half against the bill, and was followed by Mr. STOCKTON, of New-Jersey, on the same side, in a set speech. The speech of the day, however, was Mr. TRUMBULL's, who followed STOCKTON, and spoke till adjournment. Mr. TRUMBULL thinks there is law enough now. He would go as far as the furthest to sustain the authority of the United States, but is not in favor of entering the States to punish one person for violating the rights of another. He claims that the bill, as framed, undertakes to punish persons for violating State laws, without reference to the Constitution and laws of the United States. He preferred the bill as it came from the House without the amendments of the Committee, which he claims change the entire scope of the bill, making it objectionable in many respects. During a portion of Mr. TRUMBULL's speech there occurred a running debate, participated in by Messrs. EDMUNDS, CARPENTER, THURMAN, and himself, which was sharp and interesting. His argument will doubtless be replied to by Mr. EDMUNDS, who was observed to take notes during the speech.

EARLIER TO WORK.

The Senate has decided to meet hereafter at 11 o'clock, and there are still confident expressions of adjournment the first of next week.

THE AMNESTY BILL.

The House Amnesty bill came into the Senate this morning, and Mr. ROBERTSON gave notice of his intention to press it to a vote, but there are no indications that he will succeed this session.

BLODGETT AND GOLDTHWAITE.

The cases of BLODGETT and GOLDTHWAITE were laid on the table this morning by a vote of 19 to 17, and they will not come up again till the Kuklux bill is decided at least.

DISTRICT POLITICS.

The Republicans of the District met in the various wards to-night and nominated candidates for the House of Delegates. The men selected in most instances are such as will add strength to the Republican nomination for delegate in the Ninth District, which has a large white majority, and embodies much of the wealth of the city. The Republicans nominated A. S. SOLOMONS, Esq., of the well-known firm of PHILP & SOLOMON's, an old and popular resident, who will undoubtedly be elected.

THE DEFICIENCY BILL.

The House today was wholly devoted to the Deficiency bill, and indulged in about three hours general debate, during which Mr. DAWES made fun of Washington's proposed park, and Mr. BROOKS, of New-York, made a revenue reform speech, in which he showed that there would be the next fiscal year a surplus revenue of at least $100,000,000 to which extent the tariff could afford reduction. About a dozen of the Senate amendments were concurred in, and the remainder, about fifty, will be disagreed to tomorrow, when the bill will pass.

LEGAL-TENDER CASES.

To-morrow the Supreme Court will hear the argument in the reopening of the legal-tender cases, which has been decided in the affirmative, Judges NELSON, CLIFFORD and FIELD dissenting. The cases which come up to furnish the abstract questions for arguments are KNOX vs. LEE from Texas, and PARKER vs. DAVIS, from Massachusetts. The question will be as before, viz., the constitutionality of the law as to pre-existing contracts, and likewise as to contracts subsequent to its enactment. The Attorney-General will appear for the Government, in support of the constitutionality of the law, and Hon. CLARKSON N. POTTER will appear on the opposite side. But one argument on each side will be heard.

Dispatch to the Associated Press.

SPAIN AND THE PACIFIC REPUBLICS.

The armistice between Spain and the Pacific Republics was signed today at the Department of State. The conditions are: First—The armistice cannot come to an end unless notification to that effect has been given three years before hostilities may be resumed. This is equivalent to peace. Second—Trade is to be resumed at once between the belligerents as well as neutrals. Third—Negotiations for a final peace are to begin next week.

THE PRESIDENT AT MOUNT VERNON.

The President, accompanied by the members of his family, left Washington today for Mount Vernon, where they intend passing a few hours on a private visit to the tomb of WASHINGTON.

THE NEW BANK NOTES.

The proofs of the backs of the new funded loan bonds were received at the Treasury Department today from the Continental Bank Note Company, and were at once accepted, and the Secretary issued an order for their delivery, which will commence within a week.

GOVERNMENT EXPENSES.

The following is a statement of the expenditures of the Government for the quarter ending March 31, 1871:

Civil and miscellaneous	$18,861,511 81
War	7,402,305 23
Navy	4,446,242 98
Indians	1,061,325 44
Pensions	1,737,236 43
Interest on public debt	25,224,038 72
Total	$73,014,661 62

FORTY-SECOND CONGRESS.

FIRST SESSION.

SENATE....WASHINGTON, Tuesday, April 11.

The Senate met at 11 o'clock, and will, during the remainder of the session, meet at the same hour.

The resolution to admit Messrs. BLODGETT and GOLDTHWAITE was laid on the table—yeas 19, nays 17.

THE NEW-YORK APPOINTMENTS.

Mr. CONKLING, of New-York, obtaining leave to make a personal explanation, caused to be read the Washington dispatch in the New-York Tribune of Saturday, April 8, relative to the recent New-York appointments and supposed debate and votes in the Executive Session of the Senate, and then made the following statement: The last journal of the two preceding days, published whenever dispatches touching the business had been read in Executive Session, gave details the Senate by reading these reports unfounded only in particulars relating to me I should, as usual, allow them to pass in silence, as I did the other day when a newspaper stated editorially that I attempted by disorderly vociferation and clamor, to arrest the proceedings of the Senate. I call attention to the fact, however, on account of their general statements. We have a rule which forbids the disclosure of the executive proceedings of the Senate, and, therefore, I cannot, as explicitly as I would, show how wide the reports are from the facts. The rule, however, makes mysterious only what does occur in Executive Session, not what does not occur. I may say, therefore, that the sole utterances and proceedings attributed to me, did not take place, and also that the vote and the classification of Senators are alike erroneous. This, perhaps, is as far as the rule will permit me to go. I wish I were as liberty to state affirmatively what was said and done, and doubtless the correspondents who relied on upon information to mistaken will be glad to make note of this denial, now made in the hearing of the Senate.

REVENUE REFORM.

Mr. SHERMAN, of Ohio, offered the following:

That the Committee on Finance is hereby instructed, during the recess of Congress, to carefully examine the internal revenue laws of the United States, with a view of proposing such amendments to the bill of the House repealing certain taxes, now pending in the Senate, as will simplify and reduce both the internal taxes and the laws relating to the same, so as to make such income that the aggregate of such taxes shall not exceed the sums required to execute the laws imposing the public debt, and the current expenses of the Government, and adjusted with the least burden upon the industry of the country, so that the taxes may be the lightest and least burdensome upon the people.

Mr. CASSERLY, of California, asked to have the resolution lay over until to-morrow.

Mr. COLE, of California, hoped the Committee would include in their examination a repeal of the income tax. He did not suppose there would be any objection to the resolution.

Mr. SHERMAN said the resolution represented the views of every member of the Finance Committee. The income tax, he thought, was already covered by it. It would give the Committee jurisdiction of a subject with which they would naturally be charged at the next session.

Mr. CASSERLY did not think there would be any objection to the resolution, but desired to have until to-morrow to consider it. The resolution was accordingly laid over.

THE AMNESTY BILL.

The General Amnesty bill, passed yesterday by the House, was received from that body, read twice, and laid on the table.

Mr. THURMOND, of South Carolina, gave notice that he would ask the Senate to take up the bill before the session of Congress ended.

Mr. EDMUNDS, of Vermont—Then I give notice I shall object.

Mr. ROBERTSON replied that he intended to see whether there was a majority of the Senate disposed to object.

THE KUKLUX BILL.

The Kuklux bill was then taken up.

Mr. EDMUNDS, of Vermont, explained that the amendments reported from the Judiciary Committee were not designed to change the scope of the bill, but to perfect it, so as to stand the test of the Courts, while making it more specific. The change of the limit for suspension of the habeas corpus from June 1, 1872, to the end of the next regular session of Congress, was agreed upon by the Committee as a measure of prudence. If legislation should be time indicated, the minority might be filibustering to prevent an extension of the provision. The Committee had thought best to take the bill substantially as it passed the House, though he himself had preferred a more stringent measure.

Mr. AMES, of Mississippi, spoke in verification of the representation of the condition of his State, and in reply to certain remarks by Mr. BLAIR, of Missouri, which he regarded as personal to himself and his late colleague, Mr. ROWELL.

Mr. JOHNSTON, of Virginia, called attention to the deplorable financial condition of the South under Radical rule, the bad personal character of the Radical officials there, and the onerous Federal taxes which had almost ruined the people.

Mr. STOCKTON, of New-Jersey, delivered a long argument in review of the revolutionary and unconstitutional features of the bill, and the arguments upon which it was assumed to justify them.

Mr. TRUMBULL, of Illinois, opposed the amendments reported from the Judiciary Committee as making the bill obnoxious to the objection made to it in the House, that it went to the extent of punishing persons for violating State laws without any reference to the Constitution or laws of the United States. He did not think that even the Senator from Vermont (Mr. EDMUNDS) would assume that Congress should pass a general criminal code for the States of the Union. It was understood by the members of the House that the bill as passed by that body, went no further than to protect persons in the rights guaranteed to them by the Constitution and laws of the United States, and did not undertake to authorize one citizen of a State to assert his rights in the Federal Court against another in any other way against another in the same State. That such was the purpose of the bill was now urged as the pretext for the proposed amendments. After referring to the extent to which the bill had been enlarged by the Committee, Mr. TRUMBULL went on to combat the theory that under the recent constitutional amendment our Government had become centralized and its principles changed. He denied that the Fourteenth Amendment conferred any rights of citizenship not contained originally in the Constitution, while that amendment enabled Congress to protect a citizen from a discrimination against his rights by a State. It did not allow Congress to exercise Police powers to the destruction of State authority. Congress had no right to substitute the Federal for the State Courts. The latter were nearer the people, and the nearer the administration of justice between man and man was brought to the people themselves, the safer would be their rights in person and property. When the Federal Government took to itself the entire protection of the individual citizen of the State in his person and property, there would be an end to the State Government, resulting in an unwise change in our Governmental system. He was criticised each of the amendments and alluded to the danger to be apprehended in unnecessary and unjustifiable suspensions of the writs of habeas corpus.

Without a vote upon the bill, the Senate at 5½ adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Mr. STEVENSON, of Ohio, presented a petition of citizens of Cincinnati for land warrants and equalization of bounties to soldiers.

GEN. SCHENCK'S SALARY.

On motion of Mr. RANDALL, of Pennsylvania, the Senate bill to pay ROBERT C. SCHENCK his salary as Minister to England was taken from the Speaker's table and passed.

THE TENNESSEE ELECTION.

Mr. McCREARY, of Iowa, from the Committee on Elections, reported a resolution, declaring that the election for members of Congress, held in Tennessee on the 8th of November, 1870, was held on the day fixed by law, and was, therefore, not void; which was adopted.

MONUMENT TO GEN. LYON.

On motion of Mr. WELLS, the Senate bill donating condemned cannon for the erection of a monument to the late Brig.-Gen. NATHANIEL LYON in Missouri, was taken from the Speaker's table and passed.

THE DEFICIENCY BILL—TAXATION.

The House then proceeded to a consideration of the Senate amendments to the Deficiency bill.

Mr. HAWES, of Massachusetts, proceeded to explain the Senate amendments and the action of the Select Committee, to which they had been referred. He said that he himself had introduced the bill originally in the absence of an Appropriation Committee, from which it could have been reported. It contained one item of $5,000 voted at the close of last session to a member of the House, who was not entitled to a dollar; and some other items rendered necessary by the action of Congress in its last hours. For instance, Congress had created the office of Assistant Attorney-General, but had made no appropriation to pay the salary. So, it had granted pensions to the surviving soldiers of the war of 1812, but had made no provision to pay them. These, with one or two other items, made up the bill. It introduced by him and passed by the House. In the Senate other legitimate items were added to it, and if the Senate had stopped there, there would have been no occasion for a lengthy debate; but, in addition to those amendments, there were other amendments covering almost all the defeated appropriations of the last session; projects, some of them corrupt and some simply extravagant and profligate, which had been strangled at the last session. To these had been added several new schemes, because the longer Congress was in session the greater would be the number of such schemes. The genius of man was fertile, and his inclination prompted him ever to be at work in devising new schemes of plunder on the public treasury. If Congress remained in session a week or a month, the last day would be as fruitful as the first in new plans and schemes for spoliating the Treasury. There was another class of amendments in the bill that were of a very serious character and which were generally styled independent legislation. The Committee had recommended non-concurrence in them, and he urged the House to indorse that recommendation. One of these amendments was for the opening of Pennsylvania-avenue, from Fifteenth-street to Georgetown; a work which would cost the Government $94,000, and would cost the property-owners $900,000. He recommended that instead of that proposition there should be an appropriation of $10,000 made to put the present pavement in repair. Another of the Senate propositions was to establish a magnificent public park in Washington, with splendid bridges and [illegible] approaches. Five of the other propositions were of a character of the other miscellaneous. Mr. DAWES exhibited to the House a plan of the proposed park, and caused much laughter by his description of it. Another proposition was for the reprinting of the national currency, but as the House at the last session had laid on the table a bill for that purpose, the Committee recommended nonconcurrence.

Mr. COX, of New-York, addressed the House in condemnation of all Deficiency bills, as they were the resteum of extravagance, and of a bad system of expenditure. Such bills were proofs of authority; they were frauds on the people. Frugality required neither large supplies nor deficiency. The surplus revenue should be left in the people's pockets. Let the surplus remain in the people's pockets. He was opposed to paying off the debt in such a hurry. They should recruit their energies, and thus the national credit will be preserved best. He was for revenue tariff only. It was bad enough to pay revenue for heavy outlays. It was worse when the burdens were badly distributed. He referred to the tea and coffee repeal, and the demagogue attempts to abolish the internal revenue system in order to raise more means by the insidious and legalized robberies of a protective tariff. He was satisfied that the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. KELLEY) was not in a minority; while only five Democrats voted against the revenue tariff resolution, only twelve Republicans voted for it, and all the rest voted with their party. The Democracy was for reform, and the Republican Party against it. Why should the Democracy relieve the people? When they raised forces to relief they were answered by a Kuklux howl; but this issue of a revenue tariff, made by the New-York State Convention, would be the issue of 1872.

Mr. BECK, of Kentucky, explained the necessity of some of the items of the bill. He condemned the action of the Senate in increasing the amount from $20,000 to $1,500,000. But there were two items not alluded to by Mr. DAWES, which he wished to call his attention to. One was an item of $50,000, to feed five bands of Indians. He did not know how the House could get clear of that appropriation, without the danger of an Indian war. Another was an item of $100,000 for the life-saving stations of the New-Jersey and Long Island coasts, and the House could not get clear of that.

Mr. BROOKS, of New-York, remarked that the Government was now raising a surplus revenue of $140,000,000 beyond what was necessary for the expenses of the Government, and that the object of the bill was to tempt the House and the country and the lobby to demand enormous appropriations. He held it to be the duty of the House to look at the revenue and the resources of the country, and at the public debt, as statesmen should do, and to diminish the sufferings of the people by reducing taxation to the amount of that $100,000,000 surplus revenue. He proceeded to show in some detail the effect of the present Tariff laws in increasing the articles of importation. He calculated the expenses of the current year at $271,000,000, and that there would be a surplus revenue of $91,000,000. Supposing the internal revenue to yield only $124,000,000, instead of the $145,000,000 which the Commissioner of Internal Revenue expected to get during the present fiscal year, he held that the ordinary expenditures of the Government should not exceed $20,000,000 a year. To that should be added $28,000,000 for pensions, and $6,400,000 for Indian expenses, and $115,000,000 for interest on the public debt, so that there should be appropriated in 1871 only $269,392,594. He had prepared two bills, one to reduce taxation and the other to provide for the resumption of specie payments, which he would take pleasure in presenting to the House if the Committee were organized.

Mr. KELLEY suggested to Mr. BROOKS to let the bills be introduced and printed.

Mr. BROOKS said he preferred to submit them to a regularly-organized committee—the Committee of Ways and Means—as there was no possibility otherwise of having any action upon them.

Mr. KELLEY remarked that the country should have an opportunity of studying the bills.

Mr. BROOKS repeated his reply and proceeded with the argument. While giving the Secretary of the Treasury due credit for his reduction of the public debt, he reminded the House that for every dollar of revenue that reached the Treasury there was a dollar taken from the people. If the debt was reduced $100,000,000 the people had paid $600,000,000 for it. The tariff and revenue laws should be revised and taxation reduced. He could point out 219 articles on which import duties were levied from which the Government only received $250,000. All these articles should be put on the free list. Congress should also, before the adjournment of the Adjournment, abolish the duty on coal; reduce largely, if not abolish, the duty on salt, and abolish the duty on hides and leather, lumber and potatoes. Above all, Congress should take action to restore the American flag on the ocean by an utter abolition of the duty on all articles that enter into the manufacture of ships, and on ship stores, so that the citizens of the United States should be educated to maintain the honor of their flag from the Arctic to the Antarctic, from the Indian Ocean to the Atlantic. It was a shame, a crime, and a disgrace, that except on the sea coast of the United States the American flag no longer floated on the ocean, but was driven off by the flags of the weakest countries of Europe, not merely by the flags of England and France, but by the flags of Sweden and Norway and Italy and Egypt. As to the matter of internal revenue, he would accept the proposition of the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. KELLEY) in the main as voted yesterday by the House. There was almost not a single income tax. It was an unnecessary imposition on the people. He would abolish all internal taxes except those on whisky, fermented liquors, tobacco and spirits. With such a reduction of import duties and internal taxation, the country, now so oppressed, would lift itself from its burdens and float like a balloon in the air. He thought that Congress ought to do all this before it adjourned, for unless it did so at the present session the reduction of taxation could not go into effect before the 1st of January, 1873.

Mr. FINKELNBURG, of Missouri, appealed to the House to take a decided stand against the profligate extravagance of the Senate.

Mr. RANDALL, of Pennsylvania, made a like appeal, and characterized the bill as it came from the Senate as one of the most infamous bills that had ever been sent from the Senate to the House.

Mr. WIBLACK, of Indiana, also opposed the Senate amendments, and discussed the political questions in connection with the new Territorial Government for the District of Columbia, accusing the President of appointing, as members of the Council, none but members of the dominant party. He believed that the Administration was abusing its powers by using them in such a manner. The appointment of Gov. COOKE had been recognized by the whole country as an excellent one, but even Gov. COOKE had recently entered a convention of small, contemptible ward politicians, and had gone down in the dust like a worm and crawled for the purpose of ingratiating himself in their favor.

Mr. RANDALL, of Pennsylvania, suggested that Gov. COOKE had had favors enough from the Government to induce him to crawl anywhere. [Laughter.]

Mr. WIBLACK, resuming his remarks, said that everything done or attempted to be done by Congress, during the present session, had been done screening to the smallest and meanest party standard ever set up in the country. In this connection, he referred to the effect of the President's special message on Southern outrages in inducing Republicans to vote for the Kuklux bill, who at first had resolved not to do so. He was facetious on the restoration of Mr. BUTLER, of Massachusetts, to Presidential favor after hard work and long repentance. In reference to the appropriation for promoting civil service reform, he criticised severely the action of the President in forcing the resignation of Secretary COX, because he had striven to defend his clerks from political assessments, and said it was supremely ridiculous to appropriate money for this Administration, to be used for promoting civil service reform.

Mr. MAYNARD, of Tennessee, made some remarks and submitted an amendment on the subject of the claims of Southern loyalists.

General debate on the bill was then closed, and the House proceeded to vote on the amendments. The various items for the officers of the Territorial Government for the District of Columbia were agreed to, with a proviso that no person shall be entitled to draw a salary as a member of the Board of Public Works who is paid a salary for the discharge of the duties of any other office under the Government of the United States.

Mr. KENDALL, of Nevada, moved an appropriation of $15,000 for the expenses of the Commission on the Sutro Tunnel, in Nevada.

Mr. BUNCHARD, of Illinois, made the point of order that the appropriation was not in pursuance of law, and the Speaker sustained the point.

Mr. SLOCUM, of New-York, moved an appropriation of $20,000 to test a sea-coast rifled gun.

A point of order being raised, the amendments was ruled out of order.

Mr. BROOKS, of New-York, opposed the Senate amendment appropriating $10,000 to repair the damages caused by fire in the cadets' barracks, at West Point, on the ground that, according to a statement in the New-York Tribune, the War Department has not obeyed the orders of the House in regard to the three cadets who were expelled by the First Class some months ago, the President characterizing the resolutions of the House as of no more authority than those of a town meeting.

The amendment was concurred in.

Without proceeding further on the bill, the House, at 4½ o'clock, adjourned.

MARSHAL'S RETURNS.

The New Practice in the United States Courts Concerning Seizures.

In all sales of property in Court the United States Marshal, by an old rule, is directed to pay in the gross proceeds of sales without deducting any expenses. This was the old, and is still the practice, except in a certain class of cases to be herein mentioned. In Government suits against property forfeited, it is almost always the case that an informer has a share. This share varies according to the amount realized by sale. Under the law it cannot exceed $2,000 in any one case. Under the law in regulations of the Treasury Department, in a certain class of cases where only a small amount is realized, $500 or less sums the informer is entitled to half without any deduction for fees or costs, these being paid out of the United States Government's half. The statutes giving a share to the informers are held among the Internal Revenue cases and the old Judiciary act of March 2, 1799, in which it is provided "that whenever under a fine the value shall be less than $250, that part of the sale accruing to the United States, or so much as shall be necessary, shall be applied to the costs of prosecution." This statute was made when law was cheap and it did not cost the Government as much for its lawsuits as the Act of February 26, 1853, provided.

In connection with these acts are the regulations of the Secretary of the Treasury under them. Under the United States Internal Revenue laws, a great number of small cases were necessarily prosecuted and upon the proceeds of sales varied from $100 to $200. Out of this, according to law governing such sales, the Government stamps or taxes had to be paid before the property was delivered; also, the expenses of storage, cartage, advertising sale, and other incidentals were necessarily incurred, all which were advanced by the Marshal, thus making his return to the Court he dedicated these advances as necessary expenses of sale, and received the balance as the proceeds actually realized, which was, according to the printed instructions of the Solicitor of the Treasury and Attorney-General governing such matters, which the Marshal regarded as controlling upon him, coming from his superior officers. The clerk of the United States District Court, however, declined to receive our returns, claiming them to be incorrect. The Marshal insisted that that made no difference; he filed the returns as an officer of the Court, and with the advice of the law officers of the Government. The clerk, however, refused to disburse moneys received upon such returns, either for the costs and fees of the prosecution or to the informer.

This difference of opinion between the two officers of the Government has been carried to considerable "unpleasantness." Yesterday Marshal SHARPS and certain officers and lawyers of the United States District Court pactioing at that Bar, and it was the subject of much discussion and comment in the Five at that time. The District Attorney advised that the matter should be referred to Washington by the Marshal, which has done. An elaborate opinion was written by the Solicitor of Internal Revenue sustaining the Marshal, and directing him to continue in the same course. The Attorney-General specially concurred in the opinion, and advised that if the lower Courts did not agree with in that the matter be brought before the higher courts for review. The Marshal thereupon prepared to bring the matter regularly before the Court for decision. Mr. CEAS, Jr., Barrister, moved on behalf of one of the informers, for his moneys in several cases, and he was paid. Before the Marshal's motion was brought on, the Clerk began the payments under order of the Court, and the actual distribution by the Clerk of th proceeds of sale, which had thus been delayed until last Fall, is resumed.

The first payment of cost under th new distribution was made last week in the following cases: United States vs. Five barrels of distilled spirits, Pier No. 31, North River; United States vs. The Same, suit No. 4; United States vs. Four barrels of distilled spirits, Pier No. 36, North River; United States vs. Five barrels of distilled spirits, steamer Stonington, (two suits;) and in each case the informer was entered to be paid under the new distribution. The result of the present decision is that the Government does not consider the necessary expenses attending a sale as part of the costs of its prosecution under this statute.

Under the old practice, in a case involving only $19, (a case which actually occurred,) the Marshal paid into Court the net proceeds of sale, $10 50. One-half of this was set apart for the informer, and left a balance of $5 to pay the Marshal's bill, $12 68, including advertising a monition, District-Attorney's commission, about 75 cents, and clerk's fees, $82. It will be seen that by the new distribution the informer receives less money, and the Government is saved expense.

SENT TO COUNTRY HOMES.

Prisoners Sentenced by Judge Bedford.

There were eight sentences imposed by Judge BEDFORD, at the Court of General Sessions, yesterday.

JOHN WATSON and GEORGE WILLIMS were sent to State Prison for four years and ten months each, for having broken into the cabin of the barkentine Ephraim Williams, commanded by Capt. SAMUEL L. KEES, while the vessel was lying at one of the East-River piers. They were detected rummaging in the cabin by the Captain, and one of them presented a pistol at his head and threatened to shoot him unless he kept silent. They carried off $254 worth of plunder, but were caught while in the act of escaping.

AUGUST METTLE was sent to State Prison for four years for having stabbed FREDERIC KIEL, of No. 37 Eldridge-street, in the face.

THOMAS MCKENNA and JAMES BYRNE, boys, guilty of breaking into the office of SAMUEL GRIERSON, at No. 14 Wall-street, were discharged on suspended sentence.

JOHN DELANEY, guilty of breaking into the saloon of JOHN SCHNACHENBERG, at No. 103 Cedar-street, with intent to steal, was sent to State Prison for four years and six months.

CHARLES BYRNE, who stabbed LAWRENCE MURRAY, of No. 420 East Fourth-street, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

WALTER MOFFAT was acquitted of the charge of carrying burglars' tools. JAMES WOODRUFF, indicted on the same charge, was discharged by the Court.

JOHN WATSON was sent to the Penitentiary for six months for stealing a half chest of tea from WM. BRICKNEY, of No. 9 South William-street.

JOHN WATSON and HENRY ALLEN were sent to State Prison for four years and six months each for attempting to commit a burglary at the manufacturing establishment of DANIEL DOWNING, at No. 703 Eighth-avenue.

The Court then adjourned until this morning.

The Commonwealth Insurance Company.

The stockholders of the Commonwealth Insurance Company are making an effort, through a committee of their number, to thoroughly investigate the affairs of the Company, and ascertain if it is not possible to save it from dissolution. They claim that the impairment of the capital is not so great as is represented in the report of the Insurance Superintendent, and that it is still possible to save the stockholders from entire loss. They fear that if the Company is wound up by the receiver, that little will remain for the owners of stock, and therefore make a strenuous effort to save themselves, while they may. When the time came for the confirmation of the receiver, an application was made to Judge CARDOZO for a postponement, but he refused it, though neither public nor private interests could possibly suffer by the delay. A committee has been empowered to examine the books, but it is doubtful if Receiver TWEED will permit it. He expresses the intention of preventing any steps being taken until after the referee shall have taken an inventory of all the assets of the Company and turned them over to him. He claims that by the proceedings before Judge CARDOZO the Company is wiped out of existence, and that the stockholders have nothing to do with it. The order of the Court, issued on April 6, is in the following language:

The order heretofore granted by this Court, requiring the said Company to show cause why the business of said Company should not be wound up, having come on to be heard, and after filing the same, and hearing S. H. HAMMOND, Deputy Attorney-General, in behalf of the People of the State of New-York, and JOHN FLOWING, Jr., for said Company, it is ordered and decreed that the said The Commonwealth Fire Insurance Company, located in the City of New-York be and the same is hereby dissolved. And it is hereby further ordered, that the said "The Commonwealth Fire Insurance Company," and all its officers, directors, agents, and employes, of every name and nature whatsoever, be and they are hereby absolutely and perpetually enjoined and restrained from exercising any of the corporate powers or franchises of said Company, and from receiving, collecting, or disposing of any moneys, property, or effects owing or held by it, except to the receiver hereinafter named. And it is further ordered, that WILLIAM M. TWEED, Jr., of New-York, on filing a bond with the Clerk of this Court, and approved by a Justice thereof, in the penalty of $20,000, with one or more sureties, be and he is hereby declared and appointed receiver of said corporation, with all the powers of receivers in closing up the affairs of said corporation, and making final disposition of the effects, which are possessed [illegible] and by virtue of the laws of the State and the usage and practice of the courts.

The costs already incurred have been considerable, and those which I will yet accrue will make a large sum. Whatever of assets may be found, if the stockholders cannot obtain access to the books that have been instituted by which their interests may be pursued, they will be inclined to consider the attempt to reorganize the Company, which is perhaps, is just what is desired by [illegible] parties.

THE BAR ASSOCIATION.

Amendments to the Constitution—Entertaining the Commissioners of Appeals—Complaints of Illegal Exactions by Public Officers.

The regular meeting of the New-York Bar Association was held, last evening, at the club-rooms, Hon. WM. M. EVARTS, President, in the chair. The Treasurer's report was presented, after which Hon. JAMES EMOTT, of the Library Committee, made a report showing the extent of the subscriptions to the fund and the donations to the library.

The following gentlemen were reported as having been duly elected: William Ritchie Rendida, Charles M. Marsh, William Van Wyck, Charles E. Patterson, Francis R. Scott, John O. Sargent, George William Wright, and Joel B. Erhardt.

Amendments to articles 2 and 9 of the Constitution were taken up, and that portion relating to the eligibility of members of the profession of the State neither residing nor practicing in the City, permitting them to become members of the association, having all the privileges of the same, except that of voting. This was carried by a vote of 105 to 4. The amendment to article 9, relating to fixing the annual dues of resident and non-resident members, was then considered and carried unanimously.

An amendment to the by-laws, providing for a Standing Committee on Legal Education, consisting of ten members, who shall be charged with the duty of examining and reporting what changes it is expedient to propose in the system of legal education, and of admission to the practice of the profession in the State of New-York, was adopted unanimously.

The President, Hon. WILLIAM M. EVARTS, read the reply he had made to the Medico Legal Society, accepting their co-operation with the objects of the Association.

A resolution was adopted tendering the free use of the library of the Association, and also one or more of its committee-rooms, for the purpose of consultation, to the Commission of Appeals during the session about to be held by the latter in this City. Mr. SEWELL moved that the Commissioners of Appeals be invited to meet the members of the Association at a banquet during their stay in the City. The matter was referred to the Executive Committee with power.

Mr. GLASSBY called attention to the abuses in the way of swindles in the Sheriff's, County Clerk's, Register's and other offices, and thought that something ought to be done to remedy the evils. He offered a resolution requesting the Executive Committee to report what measures, if any, can be adopted to protect the members of the Bar and their clients from the illegal exactions of public officers. Mr. BARRETT claimed that the law provided a remedy for these wrongs, and that the exactions of public officers could be corrected by counsel; it was a matter with which the Association had nothing to do, and he therefore moved to lay the resolution on the table. Mr. GLASSBY said that the object of the Association was to bind members of the Bar together for the purpose of doing, as an organization, what individual members could not. For that reason he urged that the Association should take action in the premises. Mr. OLMSTEAD, after stating that the grievance was one demanding some action on the part of the Association, moved that the subject be referred to a special committee of five members, to be appointed by the Chair. The amendment was accepted and the resolution was carried.

It was moved that when the Association adjourn it be until the second Tuesday in May. The meeting then adjourned.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

The attendance at the Exchange, yesterday, (April 11), was large, but the result of the day's business was not as successful as was expected. From the character of the real estate billed for sale, business should have been active, but for some unexplained cause bidding was slow, and the auctioneers were obliged to withdraw the greater portion of the property offered, preferring to take this course rather than to dispose of it at a sacrifice. It is a singular fact, but nevertheless true, that improved City property does not command the same ready sale as unimproved lots, and bargains in the class of realty are made more frequently obtained at the Exchange, than where lots only are offered and sold at speculative figures. Most of the real estate presented yesterday embraced houses as well as lots, and the result, as we have stated, was far from satisfactory to the projectors of the sales. Some transactions were effected, however, and the following is a brief review of the day's business, the bids made on property not sold being also reported. In the recapitulation appended only bona fide sales are noted:

ROBERTS & MCGUIRE, by order of the Supreme Court in foreclosure, under the direction of GRANT HAYMAN, Esq., referee, disposed of three 3-story and basement high-stoop brick houses and lots, known as Nos. 406, 408 and 410 East Fifty-seventh-street, south side, between First-avenue and Avenue A, lots each 17.10 by about 100; sold respectively Nos. 406 and 408 to BERNARD MEIYER for $15,100 and $15,500, and No. 410 to TOWNSEND & GOLDSMITH for $12,300. Also, under the direction of the same referee, by order of the Supreme Court, lease of 7-year story brick house and lot on the east side of West-street, near Barclay, and for $24,300 to CHAS. S. BARNARD, leases twenty-one years from 1857, ground rent $1,000 per year; present rent of store, $7,000 per annum; the legal rate of interest compounded. MARTIN, the legal rate of the house and lot No. 158 East Sixty-fifth-street was adjourned until Tuesday next, and the Sheriff's sale of the premises No. 39 Ridge-street indefinitely. In regard to the legal sale of Twenty-fourth-street property no mention was made.

E. H. LUDLOW & CO., at public auction, sold the 3-story and basement brick house and lot, No. 46 West Twentieth-street, between Fifth and Sixth avenues, to M. M. STANFIELD, for $64,750, a fair price, and at an executor's sale, by order of the executor of MARIA HART, deceased, the three-story English basement house and lot, No. 203 West Thirty-first-street, west side, between Eighth and Ninth avenues, sold to A. H. MULLIBURT for $16,500, a reasonable figure.

MULLER, WILKINS & CO., at public auction, disposed of the premises known as No. 106 Amity-street, south side, between Sullivan and MacDougal, embracing a two and a half story brick house and lot, the latter being 21.11 by about 116 feet in size; to purchaser, H. FRANK, for $16,100, paid. The same firm also offered the following property, which was, however, only nominally sold, at the figures annexed, to the parties named: Premises No. 40 Bleecker-street, north side, near Broadway, three-story brick house and lot, the latter 25 by about 50, L. G. LEWIS, $32,000; premises No. 1 Third-avenue, east side, between Twenty-ninth and Eighth-streets, five-story brick house and lot, the latter 25.10 by 85, M. FAIRES, $19,500; two lots, each 25 by 100.5, south side of Fifty-third-street, 200 feet east of Fifth-avenue, E. A. BOYD, $17,000 each—bona fide bids to the amount of $18,800 per lot were received; two-story frame house and plot of ground, south side of Ninth-street, Brooklyn, 40 feet east of Third-avenue, to J. W. H. BAKER, $5,900, and one lot in rear, 20 by 20, north side of Tenth-street, same nominal buyer, $1,000; a similar lot adjoining was not put up.

M. SEAMAN, by order of the Supreme Court in foreclosure, under the direction of THOS. H. LANDON, Esq., referee, sold a lot 22 feet 8 inches front by 100 in depth, situate on the south side of Seventy-seventh-street, 117 feet, between First and Second avenues, to C. HART for $2,550.

JOHNSON & MILLER, at public auction, sold five lots on the north side of Heyward-street, Brooklyn, between Wythe and Bedford avenues, each 20 by 100, to S. H. KAMPER for $400 each. The same firm also offered four lots, each 20 by 100, located on the south side of Sixth-street, between Fourth and Fifth avenues. They were not sold, although struck off to DAEL HYLAND at $600 each.

A. J. BLEECKER, SON & CO. offered for sale a large line of valuable City property, but without effecting sales. The property was nominally purchased as follows: Premises No. 261 East Sixteenth-street, north side, between Second and Third avenues, three-story French roof brown-stone house and lot, the latter 20 by 100.5, by D. H. LINDON, for $21,000. Premises No. 115 East Fifty-ninth-street, north side, between Fourth and Lexington avenues, five-story and basement brown-stone house and lot, the latter 20 by 100.5, by WM. FINNELL, for $19,000; and the premises No. 246 East Sixtieth-street, south side, 140 feet west Second-avenue, four-story and basement brown-stone house and lot, latter 20 by half block, by HERMAN KUHE, for $35,700; 244 East Sixtieth-street, adjoining above, a similar house and lot was offered at an upset price of $26,000, but no bids were received. The sale of the three-story and basement brown-stone house and lot No. 127 West Twenty-sixth-street, between Sixth and Seventh avenues was postponed until Tuesday next.

January offered at public auction, to close the Ebling estate, nine lots of ground, with water rights appertaining thereto, fronting on the Harlem River, on the south side of One Hundred and Twenty-first-street, 245 feet east of Avenue A. In the case also no sales were effected, although the lots were struck off in three parcels to J. DURRA for the upset, as the aggregate of $34,700. No further business was transacted.

On the premises, yesterday, at an assignee's sale, by order of the United States Court, ALBERT M. NICOLAY sold the lease of the Brewery, 3-story and half-roofed and six-story and cellar, known as Nos. 215, 217, 219, 221, 223 and 225 East Eleventh-street, (WM. E. BROCKWAY'S old stand,) for $12,100 cash.

For today sales of City property are advertised to take place at the Exchange, by MULLER, WILKINS & CO., A. J. BLEECKER, SON & CO., JAMES M. MILLER, SON & CO. and BENJ. FAIRCHILD. The latter firm will dispose of the property known as No. 11 Mitchell-place, (East Forty-ninth-street.) Also, a residence on East Seventy-eighth-street, known as No. 273. All the auctions proposed embrace the disposition of desirable realty.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

NEW-YORK.

A public meeting will be held on Friday, April 14, at 8 P. M., at the Wilson Memorial Church, corner Avenue A and Eighth-street. Addresses by Rev. JOHN HALL, D. D., Rev. ROBERT R. BOOTH, D. D., and Rev. STEPHEN H. TYNG, Jr. The recitations of the children begin at 7 P. M. All persons interested are invited.

The McCahill will case did not progress yesterday, as expected before Surrogate HUTCHINGS, but owing to preliminary statements of one of the counsel concerned, was adjourned until Tuesday next. The case will without doubt be a protracted one.

A grand parade in connection with the Canal-street Presbyterian Church was held at the Church by the congregation last evening. The pulpit was tastefully decorated with flowers, and it is the boast that refreshed great credit upon the ladies of the congregation. Rev. DAVID OLYMPHANT, pastor of the Church, was in the chair, and made the opening address. Addresses were afterward delivered by Messrs. John Hall, George Mingins, Jacob Sears, Thomas and William Dodge, Esq., all of whom advocated the mission in a means of the church, natural, but interesting the power of the pastor over his flock and for bringing strong Christian workers together for the select purpose—that of rendering aid. During the evening addresses the collection of such moneys were taken from the congregation, and the commencement of Sacred music through the enthusiasm by members of the Church and congregation. Rev. H. G. ABBOT presided at the organ.

PATRICK FARRELL keeps a liquor-store at the corner of Water and Roosevelt streets, which saloon is the resort of several rough characters, namely, Westerley, nicknamed "Midnight," and "Beech" HALEY, went into the store and about afternoon FARRELL to drink. The latter said he would prefer to wait until Saylor, Westerley's friend, came in, and then drink. FARRELL's refusal to drink with the intent of creating a disturbance. FARRELL, no sooner saw HALEY come in than he took a revolver and fired at him, which, however, missing him. HALEY therefore became FARRELL's arrest, and he was held at the Tombs for trial, on the charge of felonious assault.

There was a full representation of the stockholders of the Harlem Road at a meeting at the office of the Company at noon yesterday. The affairs and highly encouraging prospects of the road on the approaching completion of its great station property in Fourteenth-street and Park-avenue, and the ample means provided for completing this important improvement, in the shape of an increase of capital of $2,000,000, any part of which is placed in the discretion of Mr. VANDERBILT, to be disposed of as the needs of the Company may require.

The overclouding of the street-cars on Monday night was dreadful. On the Broadway and Seventh-avenue and the Tenth-avenue lines not only were the seats all full, the cars and the platforms crowded, but the tops were covered, and men were actually climbing to the windows with their legs dangling outside. One car on the Fourth-avenue started up-town from Union-square with 120 human beings on board. To this load only two poor-looking horses were attached, and as they moved along every muscle of their bodies was strained, and it was dreadful to witness their toiling anywhere to pull the inhuman freight along.

Thomas Kane, of No. 112 Greenwich-street, and Peter Brown, of Thompson-street, were yesterday sampling in front of the residence of the former, when two strangers came who were passing made an unprovoked attack upon them, stabbing Brown in the head twice, and KING once in the shoulder. None of the wounds, however, are serious. The assailants fled after committing the outrage, and have not been arrested.

PHILIP RILEY, who lives at No. 189 Mulberry street, attempted to commit suicide yesterday by shooting himself with a pistol, but did not succeed in destroying life. The wound is, however, a very serious one, as the bullet remains in the neck, and RILEY, who was taken to Bellevue Hospital, is considered to be in a very critical condition.

Dunan Lodge, Independent Order of Good Templars, gave a "calico hop," this evening, at Temperance Dancing Academy, on Bleecker-street, opposite Morton. Messrs. A. T. MOCOMACK and M. DORAN and Mrs. A. A. MARSHALL are the Committee of Arrangements, and a very pleasant time is anticipated.

A stated meeting of the Medico-Legal Society will be held at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, corner of Crosby and Twenty-third-street, to-morrow evening, at 8 o'clock. The paper of the evening, on "The Rights, Duties and Obligations of Medical Experts," will be read by J. J. O'DEA, M. D.

CARRINGTON L. WESTBROOK was caught by Marshal LUX, of No. 765 Broadway, in the act of counting his wallet, containing $12, while coming on a Third-avenue car, on Monday, at the corner of Frankfort-street. WESTBROOK was yesterday committed for trial by Justice DOWLING at the Tombs.

A notice has been issued warning patrons of the Southern Express Company and the public against paying any attention to lithographed or other letters sent from New-York or elsewhere, inclosing orders for counterfeit money to be sent by express C. O. D.

DENNIS CASSIDY committed suicide yesterday by cutting his throat with a razor, at No. 206 Bowery-street, while depressed in spirits. He was sixty-five years of age. Coroner HERRMAN has charge of the case.

HENRY VOGEL, who cut his throat and then leaped from the fourth story of No. 38 Grand-street, while insane, on Saturday, died yesterday in Bellevue Hospital.

ALOIS VON HONACH, aged forty-five, of No. 49 Delancy-street, died yesterday in the German Hospital, from injuries received on April 8, from the explosion of a kerosene lamp surrounded by a wire shade.

NEW-JERSEY.

The second annual reunion of the officers of the Thirty-fourth Regiment, New-Jersey Volunteers, was held at the National Hotel, Newark, on Monday. The following were elected officers for the ensuing year: President, Col. S. C. Moore; Secretary, Lieut. Edward May; Treasurer, Major E. V. Head; Executive Committee, Major Reed, Lieut. Hugg, Capt. Seamans, Capt. Stacy, Lieut. Lyons. The customary dinner was partaken of and the evening spent in the enjoyment of social pleasantries.

In the Essex County Court, at Newark, yesterday, SEBASTIAN ANGLEBARG, alias Charles Carr, convicted of bigamy on his own confession, was sentenced to the State Prison for two years. Oscar Browne pleaded guilty to receiving watches, and was sent for two years to the State Prison.

The Woman's Home Mission Society, of Newark, have elected the following officers: President, Mrs. Dr. CRANE; Vice-President, Mrs. VAN HOUTEN; Treasurer, Mrs. GEO. DAVIS; Rec. Secy., Mrs. A. WARD.

Officer DALY, of the Jersey City Police force, was assaulted yesterday and hauled for trial on a charge of assaulting Otto SCHIFFER, as a place of public amusement, by pushing him into the street, because he could not get a seat when the officer ordered him to sit down.

PATRICK GREAVES, a resident of the Jersey City Heights, was drowned late on Monday night, falling off a lighter at the foot of North Pilot-street. Deceased leaves a wife and five children. Coroner DURNE took charge of the remains.

A cottage is being built on Ocean-avenue, at Long Branch, which it is proposed to present to Bishop SIMPSON, who has spent the last two or three Summers there. The proposition was started at the close of last season. The lot was given by THOS. COOPER, and the first subscription of $100 was given by President GRANT, who is a warm friend of the Bishop.

The Morris and Orange Presbytery met in the Presbyterian Church, East Orange, yesterday. The sermon was preached by Rev. Dr. J. E. EVARS.
